

Federation Head Voices Plea for Court Proposal

Says 'New Blood' Needed
for 'Enlightened
Judiciary'

PLEDGES BACKING

Robinson Hints at Compromise on Roosevelt Program

Washington—(P)—William Green asserted today that an "enlightened judiciary" qualified to deal with social and economic problems affecting labor can only be obtained by "infusion of new blood" in the supreme court.

The American Federation of Labor president, appearing as a witness before the senate judiciary committee, pledged the support of his organization to the Roosevelt court bill and said its adoption would "retain for the supreme court the respect to which it is justly entitled."

As he spoke, a hint of a compromise from senator Robinson, the Democratic leader, stirred talk of a constitutional amendment to accompany the legislation suggested by the president. Robinson did not specify which of a score of proposed amendments might win administration support.

Another large crowd filled the hearing room as Green, gesturing frequently, discussed the supreme court's past rulings on social legislation and said they were not the kind to be expected from judges "trained and tested by the realities of current life."

Labor's Attitude

"Labor," he said, "is quite willing to take its chance with the supreme court in its determination of constitutional questions which vitally affect the lives and happiness of the workers if the court is constantly re-made and re-constructed with men who come from close association with their fellow-men, as recommended by the president of the United States."

When he finished his statement, the labor leader was closely questioned by Senator Austin (R-Vt.), an opponent of the Roosevelt program.

Asked by Austin if he wanted the supreme court to have the same direct and immediate responsibility to the popular will as the legislative tribunals, the labor leader replied:

"Not so much to popular will, but to the real needs of the nation."

He added that he did not want a "packing of the court for any specific purpose," but a constantly changing court with new blood to consider the changing needs of the nation.

Asserting the court's decisions had left congress no way to deal with some of the problems facing the country, Green said the only alternative was a constitutional amendment.

"That's unnecessary at the present at least, and this method should be tried first," he said.

Objects to Question

A few minutes later, Senator Burke (D-Veb.) took up the questioning of the federation president. "Do you think," he asked, "that Justice Brandeis has lost the common touch?"

As the labor leader shouted his "no" in reply, Senator Dietrich (D-Ill.) objected to the question. "It is not in keeping with the dignity of the senate to question witnesses about individual justices," the Illinois senator said.

Sensors Hatch (D-N. M.) and McGill (D-Kans.) added their objections.

As Burke insisted upon his question, Dietrich raised a formal point of order.

McGill said he felt it was "highly improper to indulge in such personalities."

The dispute ended when Burke withdrew the question, saying he would "yield to the judgment of my colleagues."

Dietrich objected again a moment later when Senator Connally (D-Texas) asked if Green would have been willing to let President

NAVAL HERO DIES

New York—(P)—Rear Admiral Richard P. Hobson, 66, U. S. N., Spanish-American war naval hero, died suddenly of a heart attack at his home today. Death occurred as he was leaving for his office from his home, when stricken. He apparently had been in good health.

Hobson's chief exploit in the Spanish-American war, the sinking of the collier Merrimack blocking the entrance to Santiago harbor, won him the congressional medal of honor and place among the nation's naval heroes.

Vandenbush Given Prison Sentence Of 45 to 70 Years

One Companion Gets Identical Term, Another
Awaits Sentence

White Plains, N. Y.—(P)—Merle Vandenbush, midwest bank robber who failed in his try at the Northern Westchester bank, favorite of holdup men, was sentenced today to a term of from 45 to 70 years in prison for first degree robbery, while armed.

Anthony Rera, one of two companions in a holdup that netted $17,500 but was runned a few hours later by a rookie policeman, also received 45 to 70 years. George Rera, driver of the holdup car, will be sentenced later. All three pleaded guilty before Judge Gerald Nolan several days ago.

Not until Vandenbush serves his term in Dannemora prison will he be served with warrants charging him with kidnapping a New Jersey state trooper, and robbing three banks in Wisconsin.

Meanwhile Police Chief Frank Mallette, of Bedford, N. Y., said he expected at least tonight, of one of the men who held up the Northern Westchester bank 15 days after Vandenbush's visit and escaped with $18,500.

Queen's Condition Slightly Improved

Relatives Still Anxious
Over Illness of Marie
Of Rumania

Bucharest, Rumania—(P)—Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, seriously ill in a gastric hemorrhage at Zozoeni castle, was reported slightly improved today.

Relatives remained in close touch with the sickroom to which she has been confined since she was stricken by influenza while at the opera last Thursday night.

Her son, King Carol II, and the young Crown Prince Mihai were at the queen's bedside for two hours last night as were two of her daughters, Queen Mother, Marie of Yugoslavia, and former Queen Elizabeth of Greece.

The royal grandmother patted the prince's hand repeatedly while her daughters read telegrams of best wishes for her recovery.

Many messages came from friends in the United States.

The serious illness of the dowager queen was not known to a majority of Rumanians because press and radio were not allowed to publish news of her condition.

Destroyer Rescues 9 From Sinking Vessel

Washington—(P)—The destroyer Fairfax reported to the navy department today it had rescued the captain and crew of the tugboat Queen, short distance northwest of San Salvador.

The vessel, flying a distress signal, was sinking with main deck flooded and pumps out of condition, the destroyer's commander said.

After its crew was taken off safely, the schooner was abandoned.

Records give the sailing ship's home port as Bridgeport, Bahamas. She was carrying a cargo of salt. The cause of the accident was not given.

Eccles' Plan Faces Attack, Speaker Says

Bankhead 'Not Flushed
With Enthusiasm'
Over Tax Proposals

BUDGET STUDIED

Reserve Board Head Favors Boost in Income
And Profit Levies

Washington—(P)—Speaker Bankhead indicated house opposition today to a suggestion by chairman Mariner S. Eccles of the federal reserve board, that the budget be balanced by higher taxes on incomes and profits, if necessary.

Saying he has "not flushed with enthusiasm" over Eccles' proposals, Bankhead told newsmen:

"I think that would be the sentiment of the house at this time. That's a short and simple word that folks don't like to hear."

Asked about budget balancing possibilities, Bankhead said the house appropriations committee was "making a very diligent and earnest effort to be just as economical as possible and so far has done a darned good job."

He said he would not recall that any appropriation bill this session had gone beyond budget figures.

Don't Favor Method

Wall street bankers and several economists endorsed his goal but expressed less enthusiasm about his suggested methods.

Eccles in a statement last night said it would be preferable to jack up federal income to meet outgo than to keep the government in the red.

Calling for prompt action, he said a balanced budget would mesh with the reserve board's "easy money" policy for achieving and maintaining a balanced recovery.

"I have not been and am not now," he said, "in favor of balancing the budget at the expense of the destitute and the unemployed, but I am in favor of increasing taxes on incomes and profits if necessary to sustain the volume of relief and bring the budget into balance and permit the paying down of public debt at private debt expands."

Would Avert Inflation

"Only by this process can monetary inflation be prevented," President Roosevelt's budget calls for a balanced budget in the next fiscal year if relief outlays can be held to $1,537,000,000.

Typical of initial reaction in congress was the comment of Senator Robinson, the Democratic leader:

"Let's go slow about increasing taxes."

Army Flier Dies In Plane Tragedy

Seven Passengers of Transport Jump Safely
With Parachutes

Greenville, Ala.—(P)—An army air corps transport plane dragged its parachuted pilot to death in a plowed field nine miles from Greenville today after seven passengers jumped safely to avoid a crash.

Lieutenant Carlisle W. Phillips, 29, of Scott Field, Ill., was identified through military records as the victim.

Glenn Stanley of the Greenville Advocate said the plane's motor went dead at 200 feet, shortly after it passed over this south Alabama town enroute to Maxwell field, Montgomery, Ala., from training work at Vicksburg, Miss.

One by one the passengers jumped. As the ship lost altitude rapidly, Phillips attempted to follow them, but his parachute was caught on the tail and he rode to death with his ship.

No Safety Devices in Demolished Factory

Manila—(P)—Labor department investigators testified today there were no safety devices in the fire-work factory demolished yesterday by an explosion which killed 21 women, injured 1 and left scores missing.

Investigators' testimony at an inquest was that the fireworks company had violated the labor laws, working its women employees more than eight hours and hiring girls under the age minimum of 18.

Mongols of Northern China Forming New Nation, Missionaries Declare

Kalgan, Chahar Province, China—(P)—The Mongol hordes of northern China were reported by missionaries today to have declared their independence from China and proclaimed themselves a new nation—Mongokuo—"similar" to the Japanese-inspired state of Manchukuo.

Wholly unconfirmed reports, brought to this last northern outpost of Chinese influence by missionaries from the snow wastes of northern Chahar, said that the irregular troops of the rebellious Mongol Prince Teh Wang had established the new state with the assistance of Japanese advisors and military men.

The startling advice caused Kalgan police officers to seethe with uncertainty over the future of north China, many seeing in the al-

Britain Will Not Provide Pension For Former Ruler

London—(P)—The British government will not pay a pension to the duke of Windsor, presentation of King George VI's civil list message disclosed today.

Instead, the royal family, from its own pockets, will make an allowance to former King Edward VIII.

There was no mention of the duke of Windsor in the message, presented in the house of commons. It turned over to commons the hereditary revenues from the duchy of Cornwall, formerly held by Edward. It asked in return that commons make provisions for certain members of the royal family.

Those for whom provisions were requested were the queen, the children of the royal couple and the duke of Gloucester.

Dykstra Favors Public Service Courses at U. W.

Would Provide Special Training for Government Positions

Madison—(P)—Clarence A. Dykstra's advocacy of an educational program that would produce young men and women trained for public service will put the state university's president-elect in step with a curricular change now under discussion.

Dykstra, chosen to succeed Dr. Glenn Frank July 1, has been described as "a devotee of a program to provide adequate educational facilities for young men who seek their fortunes as public servants."

His background in education and municipal administration, officials said today, makes Dykstra especially suited to direct fulfillment of Governor LaFollette's proposal to create new courses of study at the university for students who want state government jobs.

As city manager of Cincinnati, Ohio, a position he will leave to come to Wisconsin, and in previous contacts with municipal affairs, the president-elect has prepared himself unwittingly for leadership in establishing a "careerist" school.

LaFollette Proposal

Governor LaFollette disclosed several months ago that he favored a program under which the state would finance the education of a select group of professional students, who would go into state service when graduated and repay their benefactor from their earnings.

He said it would give the state a never-ending stream of vigorous technical experts and potential administrative heads.

Then too, he contended, the program would relieve brilliant, but needy students of subsistence jobs while they were studying at the university.

Four Face Hearing in Raid on Illinois Still

Chicago—(P)—Four men were held under $10,000 bond today and a fifth was released on their own recognizance for a hearing March 29 after a raid on a still in McHenry county.

E. C. Yellowfoot, head of the alcohol tax unit of the treasury department for the Chicago area, said he expected momentarily the arrest of three ringleaders of a "northern Illinois liquor gang."

Commissioner Edwin K. Walker yesterday ordered the following held on charges of violating the revenue act: Philip Candella, Rockford, Ill., and Tony Rizzo, Mike Anzalone, 33, and Tony Laudicina, all of Beloit Wis.

Russell Bussert, owner of the farm, was released without bond.

University Ultimately To Get $175,000 Estate

Madison—(P)—The University of Wisconsin eventually will receive the $175,000 estate of Dr. John J. Davis, of the university botany department, who died Feb. 26, he decided in his will filed today in Dane county court.

He bequeathed a lifetime income from the estate to his son, Archie Davis, South City, Iowa, and a daughter, Mary Davis, Madison, Wis. When they die it is to be given to the university to be used for research in biology.

The university, the will states, is to receive immediately Dr. Davis' botanical library and apparatus.

Anti-Nazi Meeting in Me-

In Germany

Berlin—(P)—Page one demands that President Roosevelt "intervene energetically" and attacks on anti-Nazi "insults" at a New York mass meeting were withdrawn from Der Angriff, newspaper of Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, after the first edition had appeared today.

The editions scarcely had left the press when official instructions went to newspaper offices to completely ignore the latest repercussions of the "LaGuardia incident."

Accordingly, the second edition appeared without any mention of the New York mayor and his speech at Madison Square Garden last night. No other newspaper carried a line.

The original De Angriff demand for Roosevelt action was made under the banner-line:

"American Jew Leaders Insult German People."

An account of last night's meeting, at which Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, John L. Lewis, General Hugh Johnson and others inveighed against Nazi principles, was front-paged by Der Angriff.

Strikers Remain Silent On Court Order; Four Hotels Closed

2,500 Guests are
'On Their Own' as Hotels Shut Down

Given Choice of Leaving or Providing for Their Needs

Detroit—(P)—Police threw a line of guards around the Book Cadillac hotel shortly after noon today, following a scuffle between union organizers and a hotel guard in which a shot was fired.

The disturbance was the first in a series of strikes which resulted in suspension of service in Detroit's four largest hotels this morning.

Detroit—(P)—A shutdown of Detroit's four largest hotels—with virtually all service suspended—put about 2,500 guests "on their own" today, to the amusement of some and disgust of others.

Scores of traveling men, stage, screen and concert performers were caught unawares by the surprise move.

Managers closed the 29-story Book-Cadillac hotel, the 21-story Fort Shelby and the 15-story Detroit Leland because of a strike at the Statler, a 15-story hostelry where 400 employees quit work yesterday.

Governor Frank Murphy arranged to come here from Lansing for a conference this afternoon with hotel men and representatives of the several unions which called the Statler strike.

Guests of the hotels had the option of staying, which meant trudging long stairways to find food and making their own beds or leaving, an action which involved hauling their own luggage down to the lobbies.

Strike Participants

Participating in the strike were the International Bartenders Alliance, the Waiters and Waitresses association, the Firemen and Oilers association, the Operating Engineers association, the Cooks and Chefs union and miscellaneous help, including bell-men, represented by organizers of the Detroit and Wayne county Federation of Labor.

Business agents of the unions were deallocated with the hotel management on the issue of exclusive bargaining rights. Agreements had been reached, a spokesman said, on other points of the dispute which preceded the negotiations.

Together, the four hotels, members of the Detroit Hotel association which made the announcement, have accommodations for nearly 4,000 persons.

Employees were notified by hotel officials of the closing order and in

Goering Hints at Plots in Germany

Talks of Attempts to 'Overcome Nation Through Murder'

Berlin—(P)—Colonel General Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's No. 2 man, made a sensational and unexplained reference in a radio speech today to "those who believe as a last resort, to overcome Germany through murder and cowardly attempts."

In some quarters the phrases were interpreted as a sensational intimation that a possible attempt on the lives of leading personalities of the Nazi regime might have come to the government's attention.

The general, whose functions are virtually those of prime minister, is speaking in commemoration of the second anniversary of Germany's regained "unity."

Toward the end of his speech, at a point where the radio transmission was poor, he cried:

"May those be forwarded who believe as a last resort, to overcome Germany through murder and cowardly attempts, here, on the feast day of the entire people, build a monument to the fallen and around the fallen, Adolf Hitler, and his trusted followers."

"Woe to him who dares play with fire!"

He went on:

"It will not suffice that one—It will not suffice that many—of those who are of the same opinion and the same spirit will blazingly burn by this fire!"

3 Killed as Big Plane Crashes in Germany

Croydon, England—(P)—Officials at Croydon airport announced receipt of word today that an Imperial Airways liner carrying C. F. W. Dod, European manager of the lines, and a crew of two had crashed near Cologne, Germany, killing all three.

The ship left Paris for Cologne at 9:30 p. m. (4:30 p. m., E. S. T.) yesterday.

The other two aboard were the pilot, Captain G. B. Holmes, who formerly flew in the United States and Canada, and the wireless operator, C. E. Langman.

RESIGNS POSITION

Bloomington, Ind.—(P)—William Lowe Bryan, 78, who moved just three miles from his birthplace to become one of the nation's leading educators as president of Indiana university, resigned last night after 35 years as head of his alma mater. He was made president emeritus.

Born Nov. 11, 1860, on a farm three miles east of Bloomington, Dr. Bryan was educated in a country school and later at Indiana university.

Detroit—(P)—Five thousand sit-down strikers, confronted by Governor Frank Murphy's statement that "the court must be respected," gave no indication today of obeying an injunction ordering them to evacuate eight Chrysler automobile plants here.

The governor's statement was issued in Lansing at the end of a conference with a group of prosecutors and state officials. In Detroit a short time before, Richard F. Frankenstein, organizational director of the United Automobile Workers of America, said:

"Knowing these (the strikers') sentiments, I don't think they'll come out of the plants."

Homer Martin, U. A. W. A. president, announced that a plan to have the strikers vote on whether they would abide by the circuit court order, issued yesterday, had been abandoned.

"We did not put the men in the plants," Martin said, "and we are not going to take them out. We are not going to vote on that question."

Canvass Labor Front

Governor Murphy canvassed Michigan's troubled labor front with three state officers and prosecutors from the industrial centers of Detroit, Flint, Lansing, Pontiac and Mt. Clemens. All of them joined in signing the statement with the governor.

"The agencies of government, both executive and judicial, are bound to take proper steps to see that public authority is preserved and the rights of private property are respected," said the statement.

None of the conferees elaborated upon it. All labor disputes, it asserted, can be adjusted peacefully through negotiations, and added:

"Neither party to any dispute can afford to take a position in defiance of the law. The public authorities, charged with the responsibility for the protection of the public, are prepared to employ proper means to this end."

Urges Cooperation

"The constitutional authority of the courts must be respected if we are to have orderly government and society, with security for persons and property from freedom from arbitrary action and coercion. This is as important to workers as to employers."

"Employers and the representatives of labor and all other citizens are expected and urged to cooperate with duly constituted law-enforcing agencies in every community and make extreme measures unnecessary."

Martin stated the strikers occupied plants during the night and that they would confer. He did not reveal the purpose of their meeting, nor could it be learned what the union president told the strikers.

Judge Allan Carroll, granting the Chrysler corporation's petition for the injunction, set the deadline for evacuation at 9 a. m. (E. S. T.) today. The court ordered the defendants "leave and do not return to the plants."

Corrigan executives withheld comment on what they would do if the strikers ignored the order. Of-

San Francisco Man, Aged 108, Is Dead

San Francisco—(P)—Dead at 108, Levi Altschuler left behind today the record that he had lived longer than any man in the world.

"I was never a teetotaler," he said the waterfront merchant whose first customers were the gold rush men of '49, "but always drank good liquor and drank it in moderation. I didn't take up smoking until I retired (in 1906) but I'm sorry about that. I missed a lot of good smoking."

His death yesterday was caused by pneumonia, which recalled that he recovered from an attack of it when he was 105.

"But after that I got a little lazy," he confided not long before his death. "I cut down on my walks and decided it was time to begin taking it easy."

Never dreamt there were forty million overcoats in the whole country, to say nothing of ten million "guard coats" whatever they are. Maybe the overcoats worn by the 10,000,000 watchmen hired to guard the 40,000,000 other overcoats. FHA Office to Take Requests For Home Loans

For Clerks Being Employed at Information Bureau Under WPA Project

Application for home loans may be made through the Appleton office of the Better Housing program which has been opened in Room 10, Odd Fellows building, 201 E. College avenue. Four clerks are being employed at the office under a WPA project and each has been trained in the methods and work of the Federal Housing administration.

The Federal Housing administration insured mortgage system affords full security to both borrower and lender. Up to 60 per cent of the appraised value of the home, including lot, may be borrowed on a first mortgage, thereby reducing the amount of the down payment to a minimum of 20 per cent of the appraised value.

Under the new mortgage plan, which provides for monthly payments the same as rent, each payment includes that month's interest on the money borrowed and a portion of the principal sum. Payments are scheduled to bear a direct relation on one's yearly income.

Any responsible home owner is eligible to borrow money for improving his property under the modernization credit loan of the administration. All that is required is that the home owner has some form of assured income. The loans generally are made on character and require no down payment or security.

Applications for such loans may be made through the Appleton office in amounts up to $2,000, and any number of such loans may be granted to a single borrower to improve any number of single pieces of property, depending on individual circumstances.

These government insured modernization loans are repaid out of income over a period of one to five years.

Office hours of the Appleton office are from 9 o'clock in the morning until 4 in the afternoon except Saturdays when the office is open from 9 to 12 o'clock in the morning.

Schools Desire Data On Report Card System

Requests for information concerning the new report card system used in Appleton schools are being received each day by high school officials. A feature article explaining the new system was recently published in the "School Review," a magazine issued by the college of education at the University of Chicago.

Miss Martha Sorenson, grade supervisor, A. G. Osterhaus, Roosevelt district principal, Meyer and H. E. Hebble, high school principal, formed the committee which revised the cards last year. Another committee now is studying extra corrections which may be made next year.

Pruett Wins School Shuffleboard Title

Charles Pruett won the Appleton high school shuffleboard tournament by defeating Barney Meyer in the final match. Meyer won the senior title by defeating John Staudel in semi-final matches. No Meyer won over George Griesch while Staudel was defeating M. Nelson. The quarter final matches saw M. Nelson conquer J. Murphy; Staudel win over Sid Blinder; Griesch defeat K. Killoren; while Meyer drew a bye.

Ask Signal Lights At Corner Where Woman Was Killed

(Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau) Oshkosh—Alarmed by the prevalence of automobile accidents at the corner of Jackson drive and Church street, where Miss Lucile McGinnis, former Appleton resident, was fatally injured several days ago, the Oshkosh council Monday night appointed a committee to investigate the situation and report back as to the advisability of installing a stop-and-go-light there.

Miss McGinnis was struck by an automobile at that corner on March 8.

In answer to a remark that continued installation of stop-and-go lights would soon "put one on every corner" Alderman F. Harry Hull stated that a similar accident several years ago had also cost a life. He pointed to the constant danger, there, to school children, and referred to an accident sustained by his brother while crossing that corner.

Alderman Hull stated the matter had been brought before the council upon recommendation of Chief of Police Arthur H. Gabbert.

Kimberly Public School to Have No Easter Recess

Building Program Necessitates Earlier End of Current Term

Kimberly—Because of construction of a new addition to the public school makes early dismissal of classes advisable next summer, the school board decided last week that there will be no Easter recess. The present term will close a week earlier in consequence.

High school commencement exercises will be held May 26 at the clubhouse, William F. Price of the state teachers college, at Oshkosh, will deliver the commencement address.

Dr. C. D. Flory, assistant professor of education and psychology at Lawrence college, Appleton, will talk to mothers at the high school Tuesday evening. His subject will be "The Development of Your Child."

William Verhagen Post, No. 60 of the American Legion will hold its regular meeting at the clubhouse Tuesday evening. Final plans will be made for the spring carnival, which will be held March 31, April 1 and 2. After the business session, a fish fry will be held.

With the filing of election papers only a week away, indications are that spring election this year will be of less interest than last year. The trustee and county supervisor office are the only ones with opposition. Henry Williams, who has papers out for the office of supervisor, is opposing the incumbent, Lloyd Lang. Mr. Williams also seeks the office of trustee. Other trustees are: William Behling, Joseph Kuborn and Henry J. Kilson. Incumbents: Len Goffard, John Busch, Jr. and Henry M. Kilsdonk. Seeking reelection are Village President Lloyd Lang, Treasurer Harry Van Himbergen, Jr. Clerk Paul Lockschmidt, Constable John Bernardy, Assessor Martin Vandey and Justice of Peace Gus Hanges.

Word has been received here of the engagement of Miss Betty Heilmann, Sheboygan, to William Schlegel, Jr. also of Sheboygan. No date has been set for the marriage.

Flight of Clippers May Delay Earhart Takeoff

Oakland, Calif.—Courteously, Amelia Earhart considered congestion of the radio channels today as likely to prevent an immediate takeoff of her experimental flight of 27,000 miles around the world.

Two Pan-American Airways ships, Hawaiian clipper and the Sikorsky clipper, are scheduled to leave for Honolulu as soon as weather conditions permit. Miss Earhart also would use the Pan-American Airways radio equipment.

With two Pan-American ships in the air, it is feared the addition of her radio demands would perhaps prove too much for the short stations, and might conceivably bring about a mishap, Miss Earhart said. "That would never do."

The forecast today did not indicate that headwinds would have slowed enough to permit good flying.

Light Vote Being Cast In Primary Election

A light vote was being cast today in the primary election in the First, Second Fourth and Fifth wards. It is expected that fewer votes will be cast than a year ago when the total was about 4,000. Only three absentee ballots were cast for the primary, according to Carl Becker, city clerk.

Scout Displays Will Help Build Active Council

Train Older Boys Unit To Give Demonstrations

Demonstrations and displays of scouting activities and work will help sell the movement in any community and aid in building an active council, Lewis Hall, Chicago, assistant national director of the health and safety service of the Boy Scouts of America, told members of the Valley Council executive board last night at the Conway hotel.

"Training older boys in first aid work and having these boys give actual demonstrations at club meetings will arouse interest in scouting. This also is of service to the community as it provides a corps of trained workers in time of emergencies such as floods or tornadoes," he said.

The national safety and health program is intended to teach protection for the scout while engaged in activities, educate him in the use of dangerous instruments and to instruct him in worthwhile service to his community, the speaker stated.

Aids in Later Life
"What a scout learns in safety work will aid him in later life and in outside activities. It is up to the leaders, however, to point out hazards in hunting, swimming, traffic and in the home and to teach methods of combating or removing these hazards," he remarked.

In developing a council safety and health committee, it is necessary to provide experts in the fields of sanitation, aquatics, first aid and health, he said, because the scout executive then will be able to go to individuals and learn the latest methods of combating weaknesses in the council activity program.

"Scouting subjects a boy to four times the number of hazards as in ordinary life, but it also makes the boy 100 per cent more efficient in solving his problems in later years," Mr. Hall stated.

Adventurous Activities
Emphasizing the adventurous activities in scouting is important as the boy thus learns how to avoid accidents and injuries while engaging in semi-dangerous work and play, he said. A scout who knows how to handle fires, rescue persons on ice, extinguish a fire and walk in traffic also will teach others the same safe methods, the speaker pointed out.

"The physical examination, which is an important part of the health work, will uncover many defects in what is supposedly a normal youth and these can be corrected in early life. At present, about 33 1-3 per cent of the scouts are given physical examinations and these usually occur at camping time," he stated.

Will Meet Leaders
Mr. Hall will continue his work with Valley Council scouts today and will hold a safety meeting at 8 o'clock this evening at the vocational school.

The appointment of George Banta, Jr. Menasha, as national council member was approved by the board of executives Monday night. Neenah, president, made the appointment. Committees operating last year were left intact for the present.

The retirement plan whereby career men in scouting would receive pensions after serving until a certain age was approved by the board. Tentative plans formed by national executives include the payment of money by the scout executive and the council to the pension fund.

Enact Mandatory Neutrality Plan, Southoff Urges

Opposed to Putting Vast Power Into Hands Of President

Washington—Representative Harry Southoff, Madison, Wis., Progressive, urged the house yesterday to enact a mandatory neutrality policy.

"Discretionary neutrality leaves the working of the law in the hands of one man, namely, the president," Southoff said, "and I am strongly opposed to leaving such vast powers, the right to plunge 125,000,000 people into war, in the hands of one man."

House leaders are supporting a bill granting broad discretionary powers to the president and empowering him to carry out policy on war materials. This action temporarily side-tracked the senate bill calling for a more mandatory policy.

"The Wisconsin Progressive argued that a president with broad discretionary powers could favor one or the other of two belligerents and said such legislation might endanger the reciprocal trade agreements."

"I believe we should make our rules of neutrality now and then adhere to them," Southoff said. "Furthermore, I believe those rules should be hard and fast rules so that no one but congress can change them. . . . By passing a mandatory neutrality act now we serve notice on all the world that we have a definite policy and we let the whole world know what that policy is. . . . If we make our rules discretionary, we advise the world our policy is indefinite and uncertain."

$400,000 Asked For Program of Fish Removal

Would Make Winnebago County Headquarters For District

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) (Post-Crescent Madison Bureau) Madison—The state's rough fish removal program for northeastern Wisconsin during the next biennium will be directed from headquarters in Winnebago county if the budget requests of the Wisconsin conservation department are approved by the legislature.

The conservation department is asking the legislators for $200,000 for each of the next two years for the removal of rough fish from Wisconsin waters. The 1935 legislature appropriated $150,000 for this work.

Under the plans of the conservation commission, the state would be divided into five districts of which Marinette, Door, Oconto, Shawano, Waupaca, Brown, Kewaunee, Outagamie, Manitowish, Calumet, Winnebago, Sheboygan, and Fond du Lac would be known as District 3, with base headquarters near Lake Winnebago.

Work of the department during 1935, according to a recent report, resulted in the removal of more than 15 million small carp from Wisconsin waters. Because these operations require expensive equipment, the department told the legislature, an increased appropriation is requested for this program during the next two years.

Conservation officials estimate, that the sale of the catch of rough fish will be about $50,000 which will be used for further removal work.

"In order to give the people of Wisconsin a satisfactory program and to put into operation an organization to properly control the ever-increasing rough fish population, it will be necessary that an annual expenditure be made available to carry on this work," says the department's message to the legislature.

French Defense Loan Books Closed Tonight
Paris—The second installment of the 10,500,000,000 franc ($450,000,000) national defense loan was so rapidly subscribed today that the finance ministry indicated the books would be closed tonight.

The installment of 3,600,000,000 francs ($135,000,000)—was issued as a "consolation" to persons whose subscriptions were not previously accepted.

Liaison Jobs in Sight if Congress Passes Court Bill

Lawrence Predicts Business Will Turn More To Lobby Contacts

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—Politicians, lobbyists, lawyers and prospective candidates for big jobs as liaison executives between industry and government are rubbing their palms, figuratively speaking, of the new in anticipation of ERA which they expect will open up in Washington the congress should adopt President Roosevelt's plan to add six justices who will refuse to override acts of congress. Mr. Roosevelt's exact words formally admitting that he wants to "pack" the supreme court were: "I will appoint judges who will not undertake to override the judgment of congress on legislative policy."

This, in effect, means that congress would have virtually a free rein and there would be little gained by persons or businesses damaged under such statutes if they sought redress in the courts.

What such a change will bring undoubtedly on the part of many businesses is a determination to avoid lawsuits and try to reach adjustments and agreements with commissions, bureaus, and other governmental officers. To do this, business men will employ lawyers or lobbyists or politicians thought to have a drag with the New Deal.

Pay Fancy Fees

During the last four years, many men who have been in government positions of importance have resigned. Some of them, when leaving, do not come back to have any further contact with government. Others are hired just because of their contacts in Washington. Fancy salaries are paid to such men, and just what they do to us, city outlays is often a mystery, though some business men are ready to pay almost any price to immunize themselves from harassment by New Deal bureaus.

Occasionally, there's a big fat job as "czar" of an industry. Thus, today W. Forbes Morgan resigned his post as treasurer of the Democratic National committee to be head of the distilled spirits institute at a total guaranteed salary of $500,000 for the next five years. It is understood that, besides his $100,000 a year, the expenses of Mr. Morgan's office will run somewhere between $75,000 and $100,000 a year, in addition, and that he will take over to his new work some of the former employees of the Democratic National committee.

Sound Out Cabinet Men

The report has been current that the distillers actually sounded out two cabinet officers before they asked Mr. Morgan to take the job. They wanted a man skilled in public relations. Mr. Morgan, of course, has had no previous experience in the liquor business, but he has had a great deal of experience in the last few years in party politics. He knows the state political organizations very well and lots of members of the New Deal administration here.

The liquor industry has been close to the New Deal ever since "repeal" was brought about through Mr. Roosevelt's active advocacy of repeal of the eighteenth amendment. But the pendulum swings back and forth over periods of time, on matters of liquor legislation, and it is deemed desirable from the point of view of the distillers to protect themselves against vexing interferences of one kind or another, especially in the states, by engaging a man to represent them who knows the language of politics. It was in alliance between the whiskey interests and the politicians which produced conditions that helped to bring on the eighteenth amendment, and it was an alliance between bootleggers and the politicians that produced conditions which helped to repeal the eighteenth amendment and force the adoption of the twenty-first amendment. Most of the distillers now engaged in the legitimate industry are anxious to abide by whatever regulations are prescribed, but they recognize that, in various states, they are being held up in various ways by efforts to put through legislation harmful to their increased sales. Mr. Morgan is presumably to watch all such situations.

GRIN AND BEAR IT

There are other instances in which industries and businesses have looked toward men prominent in the New Deal to aid them in straightening out tangles with government. Hereafter, if a commission or bureau in the executive department of government appeared to be taking an arbitrary or one-sided action, or if congress, at the behest of special interests, passed a law harassing business, the tendency was to look to the courts of law for justice. Companies relying on precedents of the court would ask for injunctions against what they deemed arbitrary or capricious action. There will be little occasion to wait for the judgments of a New Deal supreme court. Big business and little business through its trade associations will seek in more direct fashion to find out through their political lawyers and Washington contacts what government wants them to do. Negotiations to secure freedom to operate with a minimum of inconvenience will require go-betweens, and this is the great money-making opportunity of the politicians. It has always been more or less like this under the old deal. There were little "green houses" on "K" street under the Harding regime, and there have been lobbyists and fixers here for generations, but none to compare with the political personages of today and their incomes made possible under the New Deal. One reason for this is that under no administration in American history have there been so many political appointees to government jobs. The spoils system is more far-reaching under the New Deal than under all the old deal administrations. With these political appointees owing their jobs today to no small extent to some of these same political lawyers and political adjustment of disputes and differences of opinion between the New Deal and the business world is complete. The slogan of many a business man today is "don't worry about New Deal laws, hire the right political fixer."

Three Towns Restrict Gross Loads on Roads

Restriction of gross load limits on their roads to 8,500 pounds, to protect the highways during the spring break-up began today in the towns of Greenville, Center and Ellington. Officials of the three towns set the limit, effective until May 15, at a joint meeting at Greenville last week.

Cancer Control Is Topic at Meeting

Dr. A. J. Wagner of Brillion Addresses Chilton Woman's Club

Chilton—The Woman's club held its regular meeting Monday afternoon. After the business meeting, the program was dispensed with, and the members adjourned to listen to an illustrated talk on cancer control, by Dr. A. J. Wagner of Brillion, president of the Calumet County Medical association. Dr. Wagner's talk was illustrated by a set of slides prepared by the state medical association, to be used in the campaign which is being carried on by the women of the country in conjunction with the American Society for the Control of Cancer. Women were present from Brillion, New Holstein and Hilbert. Much interest is being shown in the campaign, which was announced in every church in this city on Sunday. John Steenport is showing a slide all this week in the Chilton Theater on the campaign. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Olson were called to Chicago Saturday by the unexpected death of the latter's father. Mrs. C. O. Piper and Mrs. Reuben Maples entertained at a benefit bridge party at the home of the former on Friday afternoon. 10 tables being in play. The proceeds will go to St. Margaret's Guild of St. Boniface Episcopal church. Prize winners were Mrs. J. E. Reinhold, Mrs. G. M. Morrissey, Mrs. Nelita Ilnke, Mrs. William Cooper and Mrs. Ronald Dhein. The hostesses served a lunch after the games.

Maurice Pasch, formerly a resident of Chilton, who has recently been appointed assistant attorney general of Wisconsin, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Pasch, now living in New Holstein. He was formerly secretary to both Governor Philip LaFollette and Senator LaFollette. He also served as a member of the legal staff of the NRA under Donald Richberg, as assistant to Sam Becker, chief counsel in the investigation of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, and executive secretary and attorney for the rural electrification administration. He is a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and of the George Washington university law school.

A new 6 by 10 American flag was presented to the high school this week by John Gruber and was put on the flag pole in front of the building Wednesday morning. Mr. Gruber is the father of Jerome and Harold McHugh, students in the high school. The farm of Mrs. Hattie Krueger in the town of Rantoul has been sold to Fred DeKarske of Grafton, Clark county, for $10,500, the new owner to take possession April 1.

Native Wisconsin Trees

Conservation Commission Tells How to Identify Them, Discusses Their Value to State

MOUNTAIN ASH
The distribution of the mountain ash in Wisconsin is not definitely known, but it is most commonly found in the lake region of the northern counties, usually on the borders of lakes and swamps. It is a small tree, rarely exceeding 20 feet in height, with short trunk and narrow round-topped crown. The leaves are alternate, compound, with 13 to 17 leaflets, which, excepting the terminal one, occur in pairs. The flowers appear when the leaves are fully developed. They are white, 1 inch in diameter, in flat clusters 3 to 4 inches across, by birds. The fruit is as large as a medium sized cherry, red, becoming wrinkled in winter, and arranged in flat topped clusters. The bark is thin, smooth or slightly scaly, and grayish, and the wood soft, weak, brownish, and close grained, not used commercially. The mountain ash is used for ornamental planting, though the European species is more commonly used. While too small for a street tree, it makes a distinctive lawn tree. The berries remain on the tree during the winter and are relished by birds.

of Suiyuan, its southern border was said to have been placed along the great wall extending at one point to within 20 miles north of Kalgan.

Associated with Prince Teh, long an opponent of the Nanking central government, at Chapper, capital of the new nation, were reported to be some 100 assistants charged with the duty of perfecting the administrative organization of the government. The unverified reports said a tariff schedule already had been prepared and printed and that collection of customs was underway.

Duties were being levied against all merchandise entering the territory, the reports said.

The reported boundaries of Mongokuo places the new nation directly on the border of Suiyuan province, whose well-organized and well-equipped troops four months ago delivered a series of crushing defeats to Teh and his Mongol and Manchukuo hordes, reported by Chinese to have been officered and trained by Japanese and Manchukuoans.

DOUBTS REPORTS

Nanking—An official spokesman of the central government declared today he had no information concerning reports northern Chahar province had declared its independence.

The spokesman said he did not believe the reports although he said such an event formerly had been considered a possibility and might again be in the future should "Tokio's present conciliatory attitude change."

Tokio—Informed sources declared today they believed reports a new nation had been carved out of North China were groundless and added the barren nature of the country made it unlikely Japan would actively support or promote a Mongol regime there.

Spokesmen for the war office, navy ministry and foreign office said they had no information regarding the reports.

Officials of the U. A. W. A. and the committee for industrial organization were named defendants along with the sit-downers.

If the deadline passes without compliance with the order, the corporation could obtain writs of attachment for the arrest of the violators on contempt charges, then Sheriff Thomas C. Wilcox would be charged with serving the writs.

With numerous other strikes in effect in Detroit as well as those in the automotive industry, city police went on 12-hour shifts today instead of the usual eight hours.

Sixty thousand Chrysler employees here were idle. Other strikes left 10,000 employees of the Hudson Motor Car company and several hundred employees of the Bohn Aluminum & Brass company idle here. At Lansing 2,900 employees of the Reo Motor Car company were out of work because of a strike.

Eccles' Tax Plan Facing Attacks of the ways and means committee which originates tax laws, said: "It would be absolute confiscation of the property of the people, in view of the extravagance of the administration, to think of balancing the budget through higher taxes."

Colonel Leonard P. Ayres, economist and vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, and Prof. Seymour Harris of the Harvard economics department agreed that balancing the budget was desirable, but Harris added:

"I am not sure whether it would be a practical policy at this time." Ayres said such action would require a lowering of expenditures and not merely an increase in taxation.

Eccles' tax suggestion came as the treasury began to count the millions dropped into the federal cash box by income taxpayers up to the March payment deadline last midnight.

Officials estimated 6,500,000 taxpayers filed tax returns—the largest number since 1924. Their estimated confidence their $340,000,000 estimate of March receipts would be reached. This sum would be twice that collected in March last year and would top the 1929 figure by $165,000,000.

Parents Partly to Blame if College Youths Don't Attend Church Services

Two reasons why more college students do not go to church are the fact that many parents of students do not attend church, so that the value of church attendance is minimized by the young people, and the college atmosphere, which seems to give many students the idea that there is some conflict between institutions of higher learning and the church. Dr. John Millis, dean of men at Lawrence college told the Fox River Valley Ministerial association Monday afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. His talk followed a 12:30 luncheon.

Dr. Millis assured the ministers that as far as he was able to see there was no conflict between the college and church. He cited two general aims of colleges in general. The first, he said, is to develop an emotional stability and balance in those persons entrusted to their teaching, with the emphasis on the physical life being of a secondary nature. The second aim is to develop a finer appreciation of the spiritual values in those enrolled.

As an outgrowth of this meeting, the ministers of Appleton voted to hold another meeting after the Easter season with authorities of the college in an endeavor to work out a better working relationship between the churches and the college.

Budget Expenses To be at Highest Total Since 1931

Predict Costs for Fiscal Year Ending June 30, 1937, Will be 41 Million

"State expenditures under the executive budget will be higher in the current fiscal year ending June 30, 1937 than in any other fiscal year since the passage of the 1931 budget," according to an analysis of current state spending made by the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance.

"Budget expenditures of the state will amount to about 41 million dollars this year, exclusive of highway and conservation commission appropriations, or 14 millions more than the expenditures of 1932-1933, the recent low point in state budget costs. Highway and conservation appropriations are not included in the budget," the report stated.

"Many departments have earnings which they keep and spend themselves, these are called appropriated receipts, and constitute an extra source of spending power over the regular appropriations."

Discuss Budget

Turning to a discussion of the governor's budget which furnishes the basis of appropriations for the next two fiscal years, the alliance bulletin stated:

"Departmental requests for expenditures in the next two budget years are about 50 per cent higher than current expenditures. Further, the total of all appropriations listed in all three sections of the state budget bill for the next two years (1937-1938 and 1938-1939) is $22,224,063, or only $145,440 less than the total amount requested by departments. This indicates that almost everything asked for by departments will be granted in some way or other by the legislature if the budget bill passes.

"Approximately half ($46,306,745) of the appropriations for the two years will be in the hands of the Emergency Board, and will be released by it only if and when sufficient revenue is deemed available. The key to the so-called 'automatic balance' achieved by the budget bill lies with the Emergency Board.

See Balance

"The budget bill is so framed that the appropriations granted in Section A' balances with estimated receipts (assuming the present temporary privilege dividend tax, 69 per cent individual income tax and chain store tax are not enacted).

"The bill then grants supplementary appropriations which bring total appropriations to the amounts recommended by the Governor in Section B'. Expenditure of these additional appropriations cannot be made unless funds are released by the Emergency Board. In addition, the Emergency Board is granted $29,354,496 for release for certain construction and state aid if federal or other funds are made available."

'Fight Cancer Week' to Be Held March 21 to 27

Madison—Gov. Governor Philip LaFollette has designated the week of March 21 to 27 as "Fight Cancer Week" and urged citizens of Wisconsin to support the drive of the American Society for the Control of Cancer now in progress throughout the country.

In his proclamation, the chief executive said that 3,800 persons die of cancer in Wisconsin each year, and that the only way to curb this mortality rate is to fight the disease in its early stages. The governor urged acceptance of the motto of the newly-formed Women's Field Army of the Society: "Early cancer is curable; fight it with knowledge."

How Appleton Grew Under Its 30 Mayors Since 1857

(This is the fifth of a series of articles discussing Appleton's mayors and the important matters occurring during their administrations. These articles will appear once a week in the Post-Crescent.)

BY LLOYD J. DERUS

Seeing a need for more and better roads leading to and from the city, Mayor R. Z. Mason during his term in 1885 stressed the importance of building roads to the Stockbridge reservation, along the east side of the Fox river and to Green Bay in Brown county.

Completion of the bridge across College avenue ravine was ordered by the council, and steps were taken by a group of local citizens to organize a national bank.

Mayor Mason recommended construction of reservoirs for fire protection between Edwards street and College avenue and on Market street. A public well was drilled in the Second ward.

A demand for a public library was voiced by various groups and Mayor Mason said he would back any movement towards the establishment of one in the city.

He was Appleton's sixth mayor, and served only the one term in 1885.

Predict Boost In Income Taxes

Business Recovery Expected to Increase Returns 27 Per Cent

Madison—State tax commission experts predict that business recovery will produce a 27 per cent increase this year in normal state income tax collections.

If returns bear out their estimates, the normal tax yield will be more than $12,800,000.

Revenue from the permanent income tax law rose to $10,152,460 in 1936 from the 1935 total of $6,232,256.

In addition to the normal taxes, the state last year collected a 60 per cent emergency surtax, a special levy on dividends paid to stockholders of Wisconsin corporations, and settled several large accounts of delinquent taxes.

These extra collections brought the 1936 total to $14,997,347, compared with a similar total of $10,735,231 in 1935, and $6,318,350 in 1934.

The legislature is considering a bill to re-enact the emergency taxes which will expire next July 1.

The executive budget for the next biennium carries appropriations which the legislative finance committee estimated would require $3,000,000 of new revenues annually, in addition to the amounts now received from all sources, including emergency levies.

MAYOR MASON

Road building was stressed by Mayor R. Z. Mason, above, Appleton's sixth mayor, during his term in 1885. He saw the increasing importance of good roads to the city and urged construction of roads to the Stockbridge reservation, along the east side of the Fox river and to Green Bay.

Government and Education Costs Higher During '35

Madison—Government and education cost the people of Wisconsin $249,853,328 in 1935, an increase of $24,794,814 over the previous year, the state tax commission announced today.

Total receipts of $252,325,405 of the state and its political subdivisions in 1935 represented an increase of $19,808,581 over the 1934 income, the commission added.

Federal relief grants and borrowed sums accounted primarily for the increase in receipts since taxes, special assessments and other general levies decreased $2,523,436.

"Disbursements of all units of government in 1935 increased over those of 1934," the report stated.

"Disbursements for all purposes also increased during 1935 with the exception of interest paid on debt."

Principal increases were listed as follows: Highways, $7,276,340; Charities and Corrections, $10,922,598; Education, $1,948,099.

A comparison of total expenditures for the two years follows:

Wisconsin Near Average on Funds Spent on Schools

U. S. Average Is $74.58; Badger Average Is $74.87

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington — Of the 48 states, Wisconsin came nearest to the average in the amount spent per pupil for public education, in 1934, according to figures just released by the United States office of Education.

The average for the country was $73.58, and Wisconsin spent per pupil that year $74.87. Mississippi spent the least, $24.50, while New York spent most, $137.69.

Wisconsin rates with ten other leading states in public education in that over 25 per cent of its school enrollment were high school pupils. Other states in which a large number of children continued into high school in 1934 were New York, California, Massachusetts, Utah, Washington, Oregon, Montana, Idaho, Indiana, and Wyoming.

Many Small Schools

The little one-room school house took a beating in the four years after 1930, figures show, but Wisconsin continued to operate many of its small school houses. With 6,579, Wisconsin is one of nine states which up to 1935 still had over 6,000 one-room school houses. Others were Illinois which headed the list, Iowa, New York, Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, and Nebraska.

In these statistics the office of education makes some other interesting revelations about education in this country.

The national school attendance is improving, they say. In 1934 the total number of children attending elementary and secondary schools was 29,125,226. Of this number, at least 2,691,033 were in private and parochial schools.

5,516 Miles

This means, according to E. M. Foster, chief statistician, that if each school child occupying a foot of space, were placed in line, the line would stretch for 5,516 miles.

The schoolmaster has pretty well replaced the school master in Wisconsin, but in seven states, one of every five teachers in public schools is a man. These states are Arkansas, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Oklahoma, Utah, and West Virginia.

Salaries by 1934 had dropped on the average of $193 since 1930. The average annual salary of teachers, principals and supervisors was $1,227 in 1934.

The number of school buildings, decreased in 1934 from 1930, they report. The total in 1934, 242,929, was 4,360 less than in 1930.

Hollywood News And Gossip

BY HELEN BRODERICK

(Place-hatting for Robbin Coons)

Hollywood—This Hollywood is a precarious place. It did not take me almost two years to learn that anything can happen in the movies and mostly does. But until this winter my education regarding California rivers was incomplete.

When I bought my estate in San Fernando Valley (estate, is a good Hollywood word even if my place comprises one half-acre, including curbs, sidewalks and assessments), the salesman told me it was a river front property. I looked for the river but saw only the banks. It must be, I decided, a movie river and the prop man had forgotten to turn on the water. The salesman said no, it was a real river, for me to wait and see.

I waited all last winter but didn't see a drop of water in it. When my friends from the east came out to the place, they would say: "We like your house, Helen. But what is that ditch out front?" "That," I would say with dignity, "is the Los Angeles river."

Well, this winter we had very unusual California weather. Even the movies staging a flood for No. 1 ark scenes couldn't give a more convincing performance than nature did.

My front yard river became a torrent. It rapidly passed the colossal stage and approached the super-epic. I expected any minute to see Edward Everett Horton, Fred Stone, Ruby Keeler and some of my other valley neighbors come cruising up in yachts. After the first deluge, I poked around the river bank trying to see if I could identify some of the land from Clark Gable's new 80-acre place, or a few citrus trees from Ann Dvorak's orchard, a cow from Joel McCrea's farm or a couple of W. C. Field's pet chickens.

Before next winter I'm going to build a fishing pier for the benefit of Victor Moore, my screen and radio partner. When it comes to fishing enthusiasm, Victor starts where Isaac Walton quit.

With a few weeks between pictures, I have been having a grand time visiting the Astaire-Rogers set and watching their dazzling dances. Funny thing about cameras, they're such friendly, harmless-looking pieces of equipment when you're standing behind them. But when they're staring at you, how cold and formidable they seem! I am still afraid of them.

I'll soon be trying to stare them down, however, in "Mrs. America" again with Victor Moore. I hope we can get a good California river worked into the script. In Hollywood parlance, they are terrific.

ONLY THE BLIND WOULD BELIEVE SUCH PROMISES

If Leon Trotsky keeps showering interviews, pamphlets and books at the public we may be compelled in self-defense to stage that trial which he demands, however ridiculous a procedure it may otherwise appear to be.

In his "The Revolution Betrayed" Mr. Trotsky condemns Moscow for a failure to carry out its promises, as though the word of a Bolshevik was ever anything more than a broken reed.

But specifically, and it is about the only thing of interest in the book, Trotsky shows that with no people is socialism possible for long.

The author arrays with military precision the arguments to show that Russia has abandoned Marx. He does not face the proposition that while Marx may remain the bible of the Socialists it is physically impossible to inflict its principles upon a nation for any length of time.

Of course Moscow has deserted Marx. Of course it will continue to widen the breach. Marx and his socialism are impossible in the sense that when they are inflicted upon people even the gun cannot hold the people under them.

Trotsky supplies in correct detail the facts concerning living conditions in Russia. There has grown up, he says, "the bureaucracy, the specialists, the aristocracy of labor" until they constitute about 20 per cent of the Russian people, and these "capitalists" now receive about 50 per cent of the Russians' income. Specific instances are pointed out to show that skilled labor often receives 20 times as much as common labor and that specialists sometimes get as high as a hundred times as much as the "tolling masses" whom the Bolsheviks were somehow going to bed in palaces.

Trotsky is afflicted with a disease of words. He is the sort who would spend days without end quibbling over some unimportant detail. There is much about him that sounds untrue, and more that sounds undependable.

But what shall we say of the facts he produces? For he shows that there are palaces, "luxury" stores and servants galore for the privileged classes and only "hovels" and slums for the working proletariat. Trotsky wants to know whether it was for this that the revolution was fought and if this is the classless society promised to the Russian masses.

We think we can answer him. There is no classless society and there cannot be one. Someone must work. And there cannot be workers and no directors. The distinctions that are now made in Russia, full brothers to capitalist distinctions, are unavoidable and without them the Russian government would collapse.

In the flood of his language Trotsky has not yet understood why Stalin could beat him in all communist councils, and the answer, strange as it may seem, is that Stalin was wise enough to abandon communism slowly enough but steadily nevertheless.

WINTER HERE AND THERE

Very soon now spring will take a firm hold on herself, clear her throat and burst into full song.

And it is not presuming too much to remark that practically everybody—from the "rock ribbed coasts" of Maine to the etc., etc. of southern California—will be mightily glad of it.

For, within modern memory, few winters have contributed more downright cussedness than the one now drawing to a close.

Take the case of California, for instance. The sunny clime, the mecca of winter sun-seekers, the winter hideout of those who hate snow and cold weather—well, California has been so cold the fruit trees practically all froze up. Serious inroads were cut into the annual output of citrus fruits. The tourist trade was disgruntled, to say the least, and Florida tourist bureaus guffawed with ribald delight.

Then—although it is an unhappy thought to hark back to the disaster of last January—there was the Ohio river flood. The winter took most of the blame for that, since a good hard freeze-up might have permitted a somewhat slower running off of headwaters and a less severe flood, at least.

There were snowstorms in Montana and in other western states that made the blizzards the old timers used to talk about around the stove in the general store seem mere flurries by comparison.

In short, the winter of 1936-37 had much to fix itself in man's bitter memory, very little to commend it to pleasant recollection except the easy-going winter we have had in Wisconsin just about the preferred state of all.

MIND AND MATTER

Mrs. Helen Love was given a virtual life sentence for shooting her husband but before she could be taken through the formalities and sent to state's prison she announced that she was going to kill herself by merely decreeing that result, in other words by force of will.

Latest reports from Los Angeles indicate that her deep coma of five days ago continues and that with the exception of breathing and circulation all bodily functions have ceased.

The rather startling thing about the procedure followed by Mrs. Love, whether her particular case be genuine or not is that it but repeats what has been successfully carried out on too many occasions to deny.

A few years ago at Chicago a young man concocted a plan to obtain an expensive automobile. When the demonstrator brought it to his place of residence he killed him and took the car. His career with the stolen property, of course, was short. So was his trial. The sentence was death. He went into a coma such as that evidenced by Mrs. Love. It, too, was self-inflicted or brought about by his tremendous fear of hanging which was then the form of capital punishment enforced by Illinois. Eventually the officials carried him to the scaffold and hanged him in his unconscious state. He was not the first, however, who sought the kinder unconsciousness of his own willing as the more desirable alternative to the harsher punishment of the law.

The medical fraternity has provided many interesting discourses concerning similar occurrences. Specialists have debated whether it was self-hypnosis, the power of suggestion or the result of fear upon a hysterical person where the reactions to the dread penalties for offenses are much more terrible than are the penalties in fact.

When specialists in human behavior cover a wide range of disagreement in cases of this character there certainly should be no invitation held out to a mere layman to enter the verbal fray but these cases will probably never lose their interest to people generally because the powerful consequences that can be wrought by the delicate thing called the mind may be used to account for other acts of behavior just as difficult to understand.

REPORTS OF BATTLE

The Reds and the Rebels in Spain had a battle.

Now, a battle is a very realistic thing. Men are shot. Buildings are destroyed. Prisoners are captured. Territory is gained or lost.

And, quite interesting to the outside world, things called communiques are issued.

A communique is a declaration of what has transpired but, ordinarily, it is quite worthless, because it is undependable, or if truthful contains the falsehood of a half truth.

Yesterday the Rebels reported that on all fronts "our commanders report that militia men are deserting the enemy's ranks." That is a happy communique. Deserters in great numbers tell the sad story of a crumbling government. Desertions are largely caused by lack of confidence and a general disgust.

But, on the other hand, the Reds report the capture of numerous Rebels, and tell how these Rebels were happy to surrender. An easy surrender is tantamount to a desertion.

About the only time a communique becomes entirely dependable is when it is against the interest of those who issue it, and such a communique is rarely given forth unless the bad news can no longer be concealed.

However, unreliable these communiques are, and however clearly the public understands the fact, they will be read daily even if the war lasts ten years, and then denounced as largely false by a reading public who have come to appraise them correctly.

Opinions Of Others

INDIANA'S SHAME

The people of Indiana are not likely to be impressed by criticisms of their laws emanating from Chicago. The metropolis on Lake Michigan can not with good grace pose as a mentor of morals or an inculcator of civic virtues. Its own record is too badly besmirched. Yet a fair-minded Hoosier must admit there is point to a recent editorial quip of the Chicago Tribune in which it refers to the marriage mills at Crown Point and other northern cities as "Indiana's shame." The county clerks and marrying justices of these places have made a travesty of the Indiana marriage laws. Intoxicated couples that have been denied marriage licenses by Illinois county clerks rush to Crown Point where they are accommodated no matter how befuddled the applicants may be—Richmond Palladium.

It is estimated that 8,000 workmen will be employed in the construction of the sister ship to the giant British liner Queen Mary. Approximately 40,000 tons of steel will be used.

INTERESTING indeed, is the last paragraph of a letter sent by the Chrysler corporation to its distributors and dealers last week . . . it read: "You will recognize that the capture of our plants in time of peace, and what is going on in the plants today, is a form of revolution which concerns not only Chrysler Corporation but concerns you and everybody" . . . your correspondent does not own any Chrysler stock and has no more personal interest in that concern than the next guy . . . but he does find much of consequence in this paragraph because it strikes a note that he, for one, had not been considering very seriously . . . but it sounds quite reasonable . . . and, if it is permissible under the New Deal to seize private property and hold it (after all, Prexy R. has never frowned upon the tactics being used) it should be equally permissible for officials, stockholders, office employees, and factory workers who enjoy making more than ninety cents an hour to go into the homes of C.I.O. organizers (who are not employees of the plant, and are often pretty much opposed to work themselves) and settle down for an indefinite visit . . . no holds are barred in a revolution, and then we can go Bolshevik all the way . . .

Now that Clarence Addison Dykstra has signified his willingness to take over the presidency of the University of Wisconsin, football prospects should be better than ever. Mr. Dykstra has been manager of a big city for a long time, and he should realize the value of gate receipts.

And, if he can get in as solid as has the new football coach and athletic director, there should be nothing but sounds of sweet harmony issuing from our excitable state university campus. (It's too close to the capitol building to be calm.)

IT HAS BUT 10,000 STUDENTS, TOO

Speaking of the campus reminds me of what a commentator from Cincinnati's station WLW had to say the other night when referring to the fact that City Manager Dykstra had taken the job. "He goes to the little college campus," said the speaker. Yes, indeed, and have you ever tried walking from one end of that campus to the other?

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

TO NORMA

The path of duty lies along the heights. There is a tang to such exalted air. Only the brave can weather bitter nights. And loneliness, and heartbreak, and despair. The path of duty hides the dear delights. Courageous ever-climbing pilgrims share.

For even duty's pathway has a way Of sallying where fragrant blossoms grow. The air must sometimes feel the balm of May. The heart must sometime drop its weight of woe.

And pledge in Spring a brighter, better day When lilacs lift, and healing breezes blow. (Copyright, 1937)

Eastern orthopedic surgeon who reads this column says the teachings he finds here are sound and especially teachings about posture. Such casual approval by a man of high standing outweighs scores of back-handed slaps from the Facsimile brass specialists of Yankee-land.

Orthopedics is a branch of surgery which has to do with the treatment of diseases of the spine, bones, joints, and correction of deformities. difference between the different sugars as regards sweetness, if the same quantity or strength of sugar solution is taken? (G. W. F.)

Answer—Yes. Comparing equal quantities and equal strengths of solution, lactose (sugar of milk) is one-sixth as sweet as sucrose (cane sugar), levulose (present in honey) is nearly twice as sweet as cane sugar, and dextrose (present in honey, in maple syrup, in grape juice and some other fruit juices, artificially manufactured from action of acids on starch) is only three-fourths as sweet as cane sugar.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York—Here is a story that illustrates the other side of that old axiom—viz. If you stand at 42nd Street and Broadway long enough, everybody you know will pass you by. This story I know to be true, for I was there when it happened, and if you insist, I will even furnish the names.

There's an artist in town who likes to plaster his studio with enlarged photographs. Not portraits of celebrities; they're informal snapshots of just anybody, of friends and of people he doesn't even know. Not long ago a half-dozen people were lounging about the studio, talking of flora and fauna, when suddenly a girl who lived across the hall (she was one of the guests) gave a cry. She stepped close to an enlarged snapshot of two men walking down Fifth Avenue. For a moment it seemed as if she would faint—that's how excited she was.

"Who is this?" she cried. "Why," said the artist, "he's a friend of mine."

"Where is he?" . . . Do you know. I used to be engaged to him. I haven't seen him in five years, not since he left Sweetwater, Tenn., where we both lived. We used to like next door to each other."

"You did?" ejaculated her host. "Then you ought to see each other. He lives upstairs, in the apartment over this one. He's lived here for years."

And that's what I mean. It is true that you can stand on Broadway and encounter almost anybody you've ever known. But it is equally true that, in New York, you can live in the same apartment building for years with people you have known all your life and never see them.

Engels: They're married now. It took him just a couple of weeks to get back when he left off five years ago. This I also know to be true, I was best man.

her theatrical debut when she was seven years old. But, the funniest thing about it was the almost immediate response of producers and actors everywhere . . . From Hollywood came a telegram offering her the role of Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind" . . . And then there was Katharine Cornell's telegram to Miss Hayes: "What," demanded Kit, "can we do to protect ourselves from this sort of competition?"

There have been 27 actresses named Jane in the English and American theater this season.

Your Birthday

"PISCES"

If March 17 is "our birthday," the best hours for you on this date are from 9 to 11 a. m., from 2 to 4 p. m., and from 7 to 9 p. m. The danger periods are from 7 to 9 a. m., from 5 to 7 p. m., and from 9 to 11 p. m.

Uncertainty, as to the meaning of words, and perhaps even actions, will be apt to be one of the day's most disturbing factors. Avoid being vague or ambiguous. Jokes are liable to be taken seriously this day, so be cautious in this respect. Guard against arousing a feeling of animosity through some abrupt reply to a polite question. Dispositions may be subjected to violent changes through the slightest provocations. Every variety of animal life is likely to be very sensitive to noise this day, so keep your voice modulated, for harsh or loud tones will prove to be very irritating. Some dynamic energy may make you restless, unless you put it to good use in some domestic or commercial work you have to do. Be careful any gesture you make is not misconstrued, for movements seem to be likely to play an important part in this day's affairs. Married and engaged couples, as well as those whom Cupid has successfully brought together, will find it will pay to be sentimentally considerate.

If a woman and March 17 is your birthday, you should make friends very easily. You must not permit yourself to get down-hearted, for you will have much cause for rejoicing in the very near future. You probably are blessed by having more than your share of good common sense, so it is up to you to make good use of it. You ought to have exceptionally good taste, particularly in the selection of color schemes. Be careful jealousy, without justifiable cause, does not make you worry unnecessarily. As an artist, purchasing agent, professional shopper, interior decorator, educator, author or sales lady your real worth is likely to win the recognition it deserves.

The child born on March 17, can be expected to have a surprising fluency of speech. Its fun-loving nature and sweetness of disposition are likely to make it a universal favorite.

If a man and March 17 is your natal day, you may be a trifle too exacting in your home and business. Being, perhaps, scrupulously conscientious your general attitude towards the mistakes of others may be a rather uncompromising one, which is a mistake. As an architect, contractor, electrician, engineer, artist, actor or journalist you ought to have a bright future.

A Bystander In Washington

BY PRESTON GROVER

Washington — The President is getting sensitive about this "dictator" business. About two years back, near the close of a session, President Roosevelt let congress know that he wanted certain measures passed before the windup. Immediately the list was called the "must" legislation. The term has been attached since to nearly every piece of legislation the White House has advocated. Evidently determined to avoid even the appearance of dictating, President Roosevelt asked reporters at a recent press conference to stop using the term "must" and substitute "ought."

Press
Another phase of the President's relations with the press came up at the same conference. "The New York Times" recently published a story by Arthur Krock, its Washington bureau chief, in which the President was quoted as telling friends:

"When I retire to private life on January 20, 1941, I do not want to leave the country in the condition Buchanan left it to Lincoln. If I cannot, in the brief time given to me to attack its deep and disturbing problems, solve these problems, I hope at least to have moved them well on the way to solution by my successor. It is absolutely essential that the solving process begin at once."

Then followed a discussion of the President's political philosophy.

It was a scoop that left White House correspondents wondering whether the President was to play favorites henceforth.

At the next press conference, J. Fred Essary, of "The Baltimore Sun," began a recital of the past but was interrupted by the President with a smiling plea of "Now, Fred—" Essary insisted on asking if such a press policy might continue. The President apologized handsomely, asking however, that the text of the apology be "off the record."

Crises

It struck us as amusing when Sir Willmot Lewis, "London Times" correspondent, remarked across a table that he had to be getting a home the next day. He had to write a lengthy piece on the United States constitutional crisis. Only a few weeks ago American correspondents in London were writing long dispatches on a British constitutional crisis—arising under far different circumstances.

SAYS WRITER MISINFORMED

Editor Post-Crescent—In answer to the article in the Peoples Forum on Monday night I can only say that the writer is very badly informed concerning the powers of the Mayor, or as Mayor of any city does not set the salary of any school teacher, not even of the city employees. The school board who are elected as a separate unit in every city does the hiring and firing, the raising and lowering of all teachers salaries. But I as mayor recommended to our city council that they restore 50 per cent of the former cut which was made before I was mayor and that I be restored to one and all that have received a cut from the janitor up. But I did mention that if any one were not to receive their 50 per cent restoration that it should start at the top of the four and five thousand dollar per year men. Then I as mayor went a step further and conferred with the president of the school board asking him to see that 50 per cent of the teachers' salaries would be restored the same as other city employees; which he assured me would be done. As to what any person does with their earnings I never have and never will criticize but instead give them credit for living and taking out of life what they are entitled to providing they can afford it. Also, please when criticizing me to so openly with your name signed.

I also will accept an apology in the Forum if the writer has been misinformed. I do believe in education. I am proud of our high school as my four sons have all gone to our city high school and I hope I shall be able to send my other two sons also.

Mayor Niesen.

Governor Proclaims

Humane Sunday, Week

Madison—(P)—Governor LaFollette Monday proclaimed Sunday, April 11, as Humane Sunday, and the week of April 11 to 18 as Humane week.

His proclamation said, "the golden rule should be applied to our animal friends as well as to our fellow men. Cold Weather Delays Opening of Greatest Lakes Shipping Season

Cleveland—(AP)—The cold weather of the last several weeks has caused the postponement of the probable opening date of what marine men say will be the greatest shipping season in the history of the Great Lakes.

With a mild winter they had believed that the great fleet of lakes freighters which brings ore from the northern Michigan and Minnesota ranges for the booming steel mills would get under way the first of April.

But ice conditions in straits of Mackinac and the St. Marys river, through which all lake traffic must pass to get to Lakes Superior and Michigan, have become worse. Marine men now set April 10 as the earliest date.

But each day that the opening is postponed diminishes the ore piles at lakes docks and steel furnaces and steadily increases the demand for ore to replenish supplies.

Because of the world boom for scrap iron and ore every available ship on the Great Lakes that is equipped to carry iron ore will be pressed into service this year. Conservative estimates place the movement at anywhere from 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 tons. The previous high was in 1929 when 66,000,000 tons were moved.

Because of an almost world-wide shortage of scrap iron and ore foreign nations are scoring the world markets to meet needs of huge armament programs.

The supply of scrap in the United States is about exhausted and steel mills now are turning to iron ore for their pig iron supplies.

Open hearth furnaces are finding it so difficult to get scrap they are changing their furnaces with an increasing amount of ore. This puts the pressure on the blast furnaces which in turn puts it on the iron mines and the fleet of ore carriers.

The result is fully 10,000,000 tons less than a normal supply of iron ore reserves remaining at lower lakes docks and furnaces.

'Wearin' of the Green' to be Popular In Appleton Tomorrow as Irishmen Plan Celebrations in Honor of St. Patrick Day

BY NELLIE CHAMBERLAIN

SURE the O'Toole's, the O'Grady's and the McGillicuddy's will all be celebrating tomorrow for isn't it the feast day of Ireland's beloved St. Patrick? It's the day on which the modest green shamrock supplants the most expensive flowers as lapel decorations when the "wearin' of the Green" and "When Irish Eyes are Smiling" take the place of "swing" tunes on the radio, and the "the top of the morning to you" becomes the official greeting of the day.

Although Appleton will have no St. Patrick's day parade like those in the big cities, she will have her share of parties and celebrations in honor of the occasion, and you may be sure that every green-eyed son of Erin, wearing a bit of green in proud acknowledgment of his Irish ancestry, will be at one or another of the events.

Prominent Part
As usual, St. Mary's congregation, usually considered the Irish congregation in Appleton, will play a prominent part in the celebration of St. Patrick's day by presenting a play entitled "Nora, Wake Up" tonight and Wednesday evening at Columbia hall. There's sure to be plenty of Irish atmosphere here, both on the stage and in the audience, for there's nothing an Irishman loves more than to watch a play about Irish people or hear some good old Irish songs. The songs will be provided by a St. Patrick's double quartet composed of James Robbins, Sr., James Robbins, Jr., Lester Balliet, William Robbins, Louis Carroll, Walter Fountain, Eugene Fountain, Robert Fountain and Harold Robbins.

There's sure to be an Irish jig on the program, for what is a St. Patrick's day celebration without an Irish jig?

Another of the celebrations in Appleton will be a St. Patrick's card party given by Court Ave. Maria, No. 1011, Catholic Daughters of America, at 8 o'clock Wednesday night at Conway hotel. A cursory glance at the list of names on the committee for this event shows that there's more than a "little bit of Ireland" to be found among them. The committee includes Mrs. F. K. Bachman, Mrs. Dora Brown, Mrs. Elizabeth Roach, Mrs. Thomas Flanagan, Mrs. Florence Arlt, Mrs. Edward Cummings, Miss Katherine Conway, Mrs. Sophia Douglas, Mrs. Pat Heenan, Miss Rose Mielton, Mrs. Thomas J. Long, Mrs. Curtis Quinn, Miss Irma Roemer, Miss Mary Rogers and Mrs. William Nemachek. Contract and auction bridge and schafkopf will be played during the evening.

Elks Party
Lady Elks will hold a St. Patrick's day card party for members and their friends at 2:30 Wednesday afternoon at Elks hall. Both auction and contract bridge will be played. The committee consists of Mrs. F. K. Bachman, Mrs. George Nolting, Mrs. Henry Marx, Miss Tillie Klorich, Mrs. Jay Bussey and Mrs. W. J. Geenen.

Mrs. Sophia Esch is chairman of the open St. Patrick's day card party to be sponsored by Ladies Auxiliary of Eagles at 3:30 Wednesday afternoon at Eagle hall. Her committee includes Mrs. Katherine Belz, Mrs. Rose Morrow, Mrs. Alice Person, Mrs. Margaret Verhegen, Mrs. Amanda Bast and Mrs. Vera Esch.

Undoubtedly there will be many other parties of a more private nature to celebrate the feast day of the Irish saint in Appleton Wednesday.

Irish Program Given At Meeting of Club
Irish poems, stories and proverbs as well as a few Irish songs contributed to the St. Patrick's program at the meeting of Laetare Study circle Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. George Peerenboom, 318 S. Elm street. All of the members took part in the program. 10 persons being present. The next meeting will be March 30 at the home of Mrs. Sarah Grevill with entertainers at the home of her sister, Mrs. Lorena Rodgers, 630 W. Fifth street. Mrs. Rudolf Lovell will present the program on "Our Lady in Art."

Schola Cantorum Of 150 Voices Will Present Oratorio

The Schola Cantorum of 150 voices will present Mendelssohn's popular oratorio "Elijah" Sunday evening, April 18, Dr. Carl J. Watterman, dean of Lawrence Conservatory of Music, announced today.

This oratorio, next to Handel's "Messiah" is probably most well known and universally popular. In addition to its melodic beauty, it is replete with passages of great dramatic strength for chorus and solo voices.

The chorus, under the direction of Dean Watterman, has been in rehearsal since January. Its membership is comprised of students in Lawrence college and Conservatory faculty and townspeople.

The "Elijah" was last given in Appleton at Memorial Chapel in the spring of 1928 and met with an enthusiastic reception at that time.

VISITOR HERE

William A. Anderson, above, supreme dictator of Loyal Order of Moose, will be in Appleton tonight to visit the local lodge and speak to its members. A class of candidates will be initiated in his honor. He will be a guest at a dinner for officers of the local lodge at 6 o'clock tonight at Conway hotel.

Dictator of Moose Will Visit Here

WILLIAM A. ANDERSON, supreme dictator of Loyal Order of Moose, will visit the local Moose lodge this evening when a class of candidates will be initiated in his honor. He will be entertained at a 6 o'clock dinner at Conway hotel for officers of the lodge, and the meeting will be held at 8 o'clock at Moose hall. Mr. Anderson will give a talk at the meeting.

The story of how Mr. Anderson came to be interested in the lodge is an interesting one. More than 20 years ago the Indianapolis Moose lodge gave a street fair and instead of making money, lost it. The building company for which Anderson was engineer was the largest creditor, and the company bade him join the lodge and watch the financial proceedings in its interest. Mr. Anderson became deeply interested in the Moose, especially when it was proposed to establish Mooseheart, the Child City of the Moose, in Illinois, where nearly 2,000 orphaned children were to be given a home, a high school education and instruction in a trade.

He reorganized the Indianapolis lodge and in time was noticed by the supreme lodge and made a member of the supreme council. Working his way up through the various supreme offices, Mr. Anderson was unanimously elected supreme dictator last July in Chicago.

Insurgent Planes Drop Bombs Upon Loyalist Region

Land Operations Northeast Of Madrid at Temporary Standstill

By the Associated Press

Insurgent airplanes loosed loads of bombs on Spanish government territory today.

With the land operations in the Guadalajara region, northeast of Madrid, at a monetary standstill, insurgent aircraft were reported to have killed ten persons in an attack on Canillejas, five miles north of Madrid, and also to have bombed Madrid, Guadalajara and Alcala de Henares.

Six tri-motored planes bombed the port of Barcelona, on the Mediterranean, killing four persons. They were reported also to have sunk a ship in the harbor.

Government pilots fought back at the raiders in the region north and east of Madrid. The Madrid defense command said two insurgent planes were brought down at Alcala de Henares and that they were of Italian manufacture.

Attacks Beaten Back

Government troops were repulsed in attacks on newly-gained insurgent positions east of the Jarama river and southeast of Madrid, said an insurgent communique at Avila.

The men encharged with directing the international agreement to isolate the civil war reached London to begin their tasks. They were J. S. C. Olivier, retired Dutch admiral who will direct the four-power naval patrol, and Admiral M. H. van Dulm, head of a board of nine to supervise both land and sea patrols.

From 75 Russian scientists, artists, writers, professors and actors came an appeal for intervention in Spain on the charge the "Germany and Italy are fighting. Franco (the insurgent leader) is only their marionette."

New Talent Will Appear In Play, "Ah, Wilderness"

LAWRENCE College theater has discovered new talent in its search for people who fit the exacting requirements of the characters of "Ah, Wilderness," which it is giving Thursday and Friday evenings at Memorial chapel. The play is Eugene O'Neill's success of recent years, both on Broadway and in motion pictures.

Robert Rumsey, a Lawrence freshman from Wisconsin Rapids, is the stellar find of Eric Volkert, director, for the play. Rumsey plays the part of Richard, the teen-age young man with his own ideas about love, poetry, Bernard Shaw, and the Fourth of July. It will be Rumsey's debut with the college theater, and he is expected to fill the role ably.

William Holmes, member of the Viking football squad and swimming team, makes his stage debut after a connection with the stage crew for two seasons. Heretofore Bill has moved stage "props" manipulated drops in the flies, and handled a hammer back-stage. As Sid, the brother of Essie Miller, he handles a difficult character part. Much of the humor revolves around Sid in "Ah, Wilderness."

Miss Gay Patterson, a senior from Oak Park, Ill., makes her debut on the college theater's stage with a small but important character part. She is Norah, the Irish maid, who would be totally unimportant except that Nat Miller insists on bringing her into the foreground now and then.

Irving Sloan, Miss Margaret Mercer, Miss Sylvia Dubsky, Everett Baumann and James Morrow are all familiar to followers of the Lawrence college theater. They share with the new finds the better parts in the play. Tickets for the production are available at Sells'.

Ernie Volkert has arranged a special rate for students of Appleton schools on both nights.

Plant Guarded in Sit-Down Strike

Police Carry Riot and Tear Gas Guns to Bar Workers

Chicago — Fifty Chicago and Cook county highway policemen, armed with riot and tear gas guns, guarded the Wilson and Bennett Barrel Manufacturing company in suburban Clearing today after 700 locked-out workers surrounded the plant.

Extra police were sent to the plant at the request of Chief of Police Ferdinand Branch of the Clearing industrial district, after the company had locked the gates to prevent the 700 day workers from joining 400 members of the night shift who began a sit-down strike last night.

The "sitters," seeking wage increases, include 150 women.

In Chicago proper the strike of employees of two Chicago taxicab companies continued with no immediate hope of a peaceful settlement.

Federal conciliators, thwarted in their efforts to bring the disputants together, described the situation as a "hopeless deadlock."

Two non-striking drivers and a policeman were injured in yesterday's strike violence, which resulted in the arrest of 23 men.

President Leo Bender ended a brief sit-down strike at the Gartner and Bender Greeting Card plant by granting wage increases to 100 women and 30 men.

Officials of the Harmony Cafeteria announced pay increases of 10 to 10 per cent after 60 women in one of the units sat down yesterday during the noon rush.

ATTEND MEETING

A. W. Liese, freight and passenger agent at the Milwaukee Road, attended a safety meeting at Green Bay Monday afternoon. Claims representatives also were considered.

FOR GREATER FREEDOM FROM COLDS

Just do these 2 things:

1 To help PREVENT many colds

At the first sneeze or sniffle or irritation in the nose—quick!—put a few drops of Vicks Vapo-Rub on each nostril. This specialized medication is expressly designed for the nose and upper throat, where most colds start. Used in time, Vapo-Rub helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in their early stages.

2 To RELIEVE a cold sooner

Massage Vicks Vapo-Rub briskly on the back between and below the shoulder-blades as well as on the throat and chest, for 3 full minutes. Then spread a thick layer over the chest. Vapo-Rub's famous poultice-and-vapor action continues hour after hour. It loosens phlegm, eases your cough, relieves irritation, helps to break up local congestion.

VICKS VAPORUB

Sickness from Colds Cut In Half!

The two simple steps outlined above, together with a few sensible health rules, are the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds. In the biggest colds clinic ever held—with 17,353 people as subjects—Vicks Plan resulted in fewer colds and shorter colds. It cut sickness from colds more than half!

Was EVER A GIRL SO PROUD?

His ring! Starry-eyed she shows it to her friends. Proud are we that we were privileged to help him select it, for a youth to love a maid in love has other things to think about. The only question is: is it good enough for her—for him? Of course, nothing could be. But we try. And beyond the ring, there's that other eventuality—the wedding. You are no doubt less flustered about that than he or she. But at the same time we gladly offer you our experience. We'll gladly show you what we have.

Position Is Important For Good Bridge Bidding

An expert of my acquaintance recently made the following observation concerning a player whose strong and weak points were under discussion: "His defense and dummy play are pretty good, but he's the greatest out-of-position bidder that I ever have seen."

He was referring to a point that is overlooked by the majority of contract players, namely, the enormous importance of position in its relation to bidding. By way of illustration, and to justify his opinion regarding Mr. So and So, the expert laid out the following hand which had occurred in their last session.

North dealer.
North-South vulnerable.

♠ K 7 6
♦ K Q
♣ A J 8 5 3 2

WEST
♠ J 10 9
♥ A Q 10 9 2
♦ 10 8 3

EAST

♦ 9 5 4 3
♣ 10 7 5

SOUTH
♠ A Q 5
♥ K J 8 7
♦ A J 7 6
♣ K Q

The bidding:
North East South West
1 club Pass 2 hearts Double
2 no trump Pass 3 diamonds Pass
3 no trump Pass 4 diamonds Pass

As my expert friend pointed out, North's two no trump bid was a monkey wrench thrown into the machinery. When North opened the bidding South, with four and one-half honor tricks, tentatively set up a slam as the goal but, at the same time, decided that he would not push the bidding that far unless he could determine beyond doubt that North held a five card suit. His own hand, despite its honor strength, was too broken up to risk a twelve trick contract unless he could look to one suit for a substantial number of tricks. The two heart bid, therefore, was more or less of an explanatory bid. South's greatest hope being that North would rebid clubs. West's double (a bad one, by the way) threw North completely off his stride. Why this should have been so is hard to say, but the fact remains that North's reaction to the double was typical of a less-than-expert player. North had not only one but two good bids available. For the best would have been a simple pass, but the second choice of three clubs would have done no harm.

In a situation of this type, where the responder's jump bid is doubtful, a pass by the opener implies acceptance only in a limited sense. Thus two hearts in North's hand were sufficient. The only excuse for a rescue would have been a void or a singleton heart. The no trump rescue flattened South's slam aspirations as though North had reached over and torn up one of his aces. North now was to be the declarer, whether in clubs or no trump, and it was quite obvious to South that the commanded heart lead through his own king-jack would be fatal. North might have every missing honor in the deck outside of hearts, but with the ace-queen virtually marked over the king-jack, two tricks probably would be lost at the start.

Obviously had North done either of two things that were logical the partnership would have been in great shape. If North had passed South would have been delighted to baton his slam aspirations in favor of a much surer and probably just as profitable redouble. This, of course, would have been the correct bid. South would have worried little about West's trump holding since the side suit honors in the North-South hands would be bound to produce six or seven tricks. As a matter of fact South could have made ten tricks on his contract for eight. West could not have taken more than three trump tricks. This would have come to 240 points below the line and 800 above, not counting the rubber bonus. Or, if North had made the second best bid of three clubs, South would have climbed to a six no trump contract with himself as declarer, thus insuring that no opening lead could be ruinous.

TODAY'S QUESTION
Question: Third hand opened the bidding with one heart. His partner responded with two diamonds. Is this a force?

Answer: No, as the responding hand had passed originally.

My Neighbor Says—

There is danger of garden products crossing. This is particularly true in the case of squashes, cucumbers and melons. If one wants to keep his variety true, he must choose seeds from plants that have not been grown near other varieties. This applies likewise to corn.

Hot water poured over tomatoes loosens skins, but often softens tomatoes. Skins may be removed by rubbing them with the back of a silver knife.

Cocoa should always be cooked with a small amount of water before milk is added in order to cook the starch and give a smooth well-blended mixture.

When applying a liniment instead of filling one's hand with liniment and slapping it on the patient's skin, the proper method is to remove the cork and, carefully pouring away from the label side of the bottle (to save it from being stained), pour a small quantity of the liniment directly upon the affected area. Then, with firm but gentle pressure and a smooth circular movement, the liniment should be rubbed into the skin until it is absorbed.

Paper egg case fillers make excellent containers in which to sow seeds in the house. Placed in flats and filled with light loam, seedlings will soon appear and may be easily transplanted without removing the earth around them.

II—SAHARA TRAVEL
The old and time-honored form of travel in the Sahara is with camels. These strange-looking beasts are not friendly by nature, but they have been helpers of men for many hundreds of years.

Plans to lay railroads across the great desert have been made, but have not been realized so far. A still more modern method of travel has come, however—the airplane. Airplanes cross the Sahara from north to south, and from east to west. The crossing can be finished between dawn and sunset. (For Travel section of your scrapbook.)

If you want a free copy of the illustrated leaflet "Stamps and Stamp Collecting" send me a 3c stamped, return envelope in care of this newspaper.

We speak of camels going without water for days at a stretch, but we must remember that the animals have pouches in their stomachs for storing water. One pouch will hold as much as six quarts of water. The camel uses the water slowly. Now and then travelers in danger of dying from thirst on the

Children Place Faith In Parent's Activity

BY ANGELO PATRI

Children need to feel that their fathers and mothers are giants of accomplishment. "My father can drive a car better than anybody in this whole town." "My mother is the prettiest in our church. And she can sing best, too." These are the boasts of proud children who feel strength in their parents. That feeling makes them stronger, gives them courage and a feeling of power. They must have that feeling of reliance upon their parents. That is why we should not let children know when we are worried. That is why we never let them hear us complain, see us cry, or hear us say, "I just can't go on." We must go on, and we must look as though we were succeeding at it, because our children have to feel our power behind them. They are relying upon us.

It is a great mistake to say to a child, "I don't know what to do with you." Or, before him, "I can't do a thing with that child." This is contrary to what a child feels his parents should be. He wants to think that they always know what to do and are able to do it. Often he thinks that not they are, but they are able to do it. But the child, who is so important, so it is better to say nothing and look much when there is a hard problem waiting solution.

Never ask for pity from a child. Just because he is so big and so strong. They like to look at an elephant for the same reason. They like to see the pictures that show strong men doing impossible feats. They like to picture themselves as bold and daring and all-powerful. They have no feeling of pity for the oppressed until they have first rejected with the oppressor. They learn to pity and sympathize only after experience, backed up by teaching at home and in school, has brought that feeling to their minds. They admire strength and power even when they are the victims. Have you ever wondered at the saving of little boys following the bully of the neighborhood? Be strong for the sake of the little ones who are drawing strength from your strength. Be strong for

Turn Artist To Create Illusions

BY ELSIE PERCE

WE've talked about optical illusions before. We've pointed to simple vertical and horizontal lines and noticed how they carry the eye outward or up and down.

Now, let's turn advanced artist. If you have a photograph of yourself full-faced take it out of the album. Get yourself a dozen sheets of tracing paper, a black and a red pencil. Ready, set, go. Trace the outline of your face on one sheet, then another and another.

Is your face very long? Then, providing your features are fair, draw in the hair with a center part. Now pencil in the red, for the rouge area, well out on the cheeks. If your brows are short elongate them a little. Blend rouge lightly on chin and lobes of ears if you can do it artistically. Fill this with the pencil, of course. Red pencil your lips well out to the corners.

Want to prove that the above picture will make your face look ever so much wider. Then on another traced tissue put the hair on the side, rouge cheeks nearer nose and in an up and down triangle—and you'll see a mighty long face.

The center part invariably makes the face look wider. But it also emphasizes the features so that if they are irregular keep the part a little off center, but quite high. Rouge calls attention to the area it covers. So, if there are high cheek bones or hollows keep the rouge just a little beneath the cheek bones and a little above the hollows. If you rouge outward the eyes are carried outward, and the face seems wider.

You can carry the eye tricks further with wide, round collars, round high necklines, turban hats are good, hats with round and round brims are good, avoid tall crowns.

Round Face

Now if your face is round you can, just for fun, follow the above moon it looks more like a hair, brushed back, piled high and kept close to the head at the sides. Now the rouge in an up and down movement under the eyes, nearer the nose. See how much closer together it seems to bring the round part of the cheeks. Don't fluff your hair out at the sides, or rouge the cheeks in wide areas or elongate the brows for they all carry the eye outward giving a feeling of width. Don't wear round collars—deep V or U shaped necklines are best for you. High crowns for hats are good. Anything that carries the eye up and down.

More optical illusions in my bulletin "Fashion Hints." Send a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope for it. Address Miss Pierce in care of the Appleton Post-Crescent. (Copyright, 1937)

Dr. William D. Lee, soil conservation specialist at North Carolina State college, says American lives and property never will be free from the danger of floods until the main water sheds are adequately protected by forests and close-growing crops.

The faltering adolescent. Show him that when material things appear to go against him, when he appears to be failing, he still has the infinite power of the spirit, the same spirit that sustains you in time of need, to fall back on. "Be strong in the Lord," is the strength that you cultivate in the adolescent child.

There are times when the stoutest heart quavers. But will quivering help? Call on whatever strength you know, and for the children's sake and for your own, be strong.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Woman Married to Divorcee Must Accept Her Situation

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—I married a divorced man and at his request our marriage was kept secret for two years. He is very jealous, and after one occasion when he came into the office where I work and made a scene and demanded his wedding ring back, my mother forced him to announce our marriage and take me to live with him.

I adore my husband, and except for his jealousy he is nearly perfect; but there are many things in my life that keep me ALMOST on the point of leaving him. One is that his mother lives with us, and Heaven didn't mean for a man's wife and mother to call the same place home. Another reason is that he lets his son by his divorced wife use his car, and I am supposed to beam with joy when he brags about the boy. Another is that the first wife uses his name, and I want to be the ONLY Mrs. Jones. Another is that my husband does not resent my being called "Miss Smith" by the people I am associated with in business, as I was before I was married. And another is that my husband constantly compares me with Wife No. 1, and I don't do this or that. What do you think I should do?

Try to cultivate a little common sense, in which you seem to be abnormally deficient. Accept the situation in which you find yourself and which you deliberately chose, and make the best of it. After all, it isn't so bad.

I agree with you that it is unfortunate when a mother-in-law and daughter-in-law have to live together, for no two women can live under the same roof without getting on each other's nerves, but even that is what you make it. You can make her a friend or an enemy, as you will, for there are very few old ladies who cannot be won over by a young woman who will take the trouble to be kind and considerate to them, who will make them feel welcome in their sons' houses, and who will not respond to a little affection.

After all, a daughter-in-law owes much to the woman who has given her a good husband. You might think of that a little. And you might also remember that perhaps sometime you will be the unwanted mother-in-law in your son's house, and so treat your mother-in-law as you would like to be treated.

As for your other troubles, when you married a divorced man you must have known that you would face complications arising out of his previous marriage. You know that you could never possibly be the only Mrs. Jones, because there was another one who had as good a right to the name as you have, so why make that a grievance now?

And surely you are not heartless enough and selfish enough to wish your husband not to love his son and have pride in him, when he is his own flesh and blood. And you are silly in objecting to being called "Miss Smith" in business, when it is the common custom for women to keep their names as a sort of trade-mark if they succeed in business or a profession. Don't go out of your way to borrow trouble. Plenty of it will come to you as you go along.

Dear Miss Dix—I dye my hair because I can get a more becoming color than my own is. My fiancé raves about my black hair, but as he stresses that there should be no secrets between us shall I tell him before we are married. MARION.

Answer: Certainly. This is one time when the truth in indicated, because he would find it out as soon as you were married. Anyway, if he doesn't love you for anything but your hair you've got a slight hold upon him. DOROTHY DIX.

GOOD TASTE TODAY

BY EMILY POST

HOSPITALITY IS EXPRESSED—Dear Mrs. Post: I have stayed over several week-ends in the country with dear young friends of mine who have been married not quite a year, and I have never been able to return their hospitality. I can not invite even good friends to our house as my mother is a semi-invalid who is greatly upset with people in the house. Can you suggest something I might do for these friends, which would not cost too much?

Answer: If you haven't sent them a wedding present, then do this by all means. If you have given them one, then I would suggest sending them something in paper on their paper wedding day, which is the first anniversary. As a particular suggestion, why not have some good-looking note paper marked with their address. A box of assorted sizes would be especially useful to both on a variety of occasions. Or if you don't like this idea, send the wife flowers.

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter received an engagement ring several months ago. At the time we could not give her a party to announce the engagement, and she wore her ring, and of course every one knows. Now her fiancé's mother is coming to visit us. She is a stranger and my daughter thinks it would be fitting to have an announcement party while she is here. Personally I can't see any point in announcing old news. If you don't agree, however, will you suggest invitation and a few of the essential details for such a party?

Answer: I would give an afternoon tea or an evening at home and make Mrs. X, the guest of honor. Informally you write on your visiting card, "To meet Mrs. X," and underneath this, in parenthesis, ("Mrs. X's future mother-in-law").

Dear Mrs. Post: I don't believe ordinary rules hold good in my particular problem. My brother's fiancée is my best friend. It is only natural that I should like to give a shower party for my best friend, but does the fact that she is marrying my brother make it seem unsuitable for me to ask her friends to bring presents?

Answer: Since it is not really in best taste to have the immediate family of the bride give a shower party, the family of the groom comes, it seems to me, in this same category. Therefore I think it would be better to avoid all possible criticism and give the party just as though it were a shower for the bride. Of course it would be entirely proper should an outside friend of either the bride or groom suggest to the other guests that they turn your party into a shower by bringing whatever they want to the party.

Old Gardener Says:

BY E. I. FARRINGTON

Plant radish seeds with your car's vegetable about six inches apart. The rows that cultivation can begin promptly, and the young radishes may be pulled for the table before the other crops come along. Sometimes it is found difficult to grow radishes and early turnips because of maggots in the soil. These pests can be kept in subjection to a considerable degree by using lime or tobacco dust.

SUFFERED 40 YEARS FROM CONSTIPATION

"For 40 years, I had been praying for a lasting remedy for constipation and its evils. Finally, I tried Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Since that time (nearly 10 years ago), I have never taken any medicine. I have been well and entirely free from constipation."—Mrs. I. H. Kendig, R. F. D. No. 2, Lancaster, Penna.

Don't let common constipation ruin your life. You can end it safely, without using drugs that soon lose their effectiveness.

Just eat two tablespoons of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—with every meal in severe cases. Serve as a cereal with milk or fruit, or cook into appetizing recipes. ALL-BRAN absorbs more than twice its weight in water and gently clears away the wastes that cause headaches, tiredness and serious illness.

The vitamin B in ALL-BRAN helps tone up the entire intestinal tract. Buy ALL-BRAN from your grocer. Guaranteed by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Cites Need for County Child Welfare Committee

New London—A plea for an official county child welfare advisory board and organized local committee in Waupaca county was voiced by Miss Clara Lueck, social worker in the children's division of the state board of control, in a talk on her work before the Rotary club at the Elwood hotel yesterday noon. Such a set-up is vital to the best success in the work which was undertaken in this area just about a year ago, she said.

Miss Lueck works in Waupaca, Shawano and Langlade counties and spends about 10 days in each, with headquarters at the various county seats. Her job is to investigate illegitimate, underprivileged, undernourished, diseased or crippled children, those who are neglected or in need of clean wholesome family life and take what steps are necessary to correct the condition if possible. The work definitely is beneficial, she said, and cited several cases in New London which showed wonderful results.

She also arranges for adoptions or the care of children by suitable families or couples who qualify. The persons selected are paid to board, room and rear the children and have no claim on them except by adoption. Welfare workers' salaries and a large part of the expenses are paid from social security act funds, Miss Lueck said. There are such workers in the state of Wisconsin now.

Miss Lueck works in close collaboration with juvenile judges in the counties, public health nurses and city physicians and has chosen a representative citizen in each city to act as a committee to recommend cases. W. T. Comstock is the New London member of her advisory committee.

The speaker was of the opinion the work could be much more effective, wider in scope and more permanent if an official county board was organized to advise and aid the field worker. The most noticeable results in the work is the decrease in child delinquency, the welfare worker declared.

QUICK! STOP THAT COLD IN THE DRY OR FIRST STAGE!

A cold ordinarily goes through three stages: The Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage.

A cold is twice as easily stopped in the first as in the second or third stages. In fact, to let a cold run beyond the first stage is inviting trouble.

Expressly for Colds!

As your doctor will tell you, there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine.

It is expressly a cold tablet and not a "cure-all". It is internal treatment which a cold requires. It does four important things: First, it opens the bowels. Second, it checks the infection in the system. Third, it relieves the headache and fever. Fourth, it tones the system and helps fortify against further attack.

Hold Hearings On Complaints Against 4 Firms

Charge 6 Companies, Including One at Menasha, Violated Regulations

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau) Washington—The Federal Trade Commission held final hearings Monday on its complaint against the Menasha Wooden Ware corporation, Menasha, the Wisconsin Butter Tub company, Marshfield, and four other butter tub manufacturers.

The commission charges that the six companies, which are the largest manufacturers of wooden ware used in the packaging of butter, violated the federal trade commission act by agreeing to fix uniform prices, and the Clayton act by "unlawful price discrimination."

The commission says they organized a trade association in Milwaukee in September 1932 to help enforce their understandings and agreements to fix uniform prices.

"Favored" jobbers and creamery customers were given lower prices than allowed other customers, by agreement among the manufacturers, the commission also says.

If the commission decides that they are "guilty as charged," an order for them to cease and desist from the practices will be issued.

The other concerns involved are the Creamery Package manufacturing company, Chicago; the Elgin (Ill.) Butter Tub company; the Bousfield Wooden Ware company, Minneapolis; and the Storey City (Iowa) Butter Tub company.

New London-Shawano Battle Will Feature Last Night's Program

NEW LONDON—Plans are being made to accommodate a capacity crowd at the New London regional basketball tournament at Washington. High school gym Friday and Saturday. Tremendous enthusiasm in this city alone indicates the 1,500 seating capacity will be taxed to the limit. Nearly all the 400 reserved season tickets had been sold last evening. Blocks of tickets were sent to interested schools and many have asked for more.

The smashing climax to the tournament will be the clash at 9:30 Saturday evening between the two conference opponents and present champions in their districts, New London and Shawano. New London won the Class B elimination contest at Kaukauna and Shawano at Oconto. In conference play Shawano has twice eked out a 1-point victory over the Stacymen. The bank of five rows on the north side of the gym is reserved for each night and if necessary the first row in the balcony also will be reserved.

There has been much speculation on the seating capacity of the New London gymnasium but H. H. Helms, superintendent, is confident 1,500 can be handled comfortably. In the balcony the bleachers hold 400 more besides the same number of reserved places. Room is available for several rows of chairs along the side lines and if necessary bleachers for 200 can be erected on the gymnasium stage.

Joe McCarthy Stands Pat on N. Y. Yankees

Editors: This is another of a series outlining major league pennant prospects.

BY PAUL MICRELSON
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (U. P.)—Joe McCarthy is standing pat with his New York Yankees. The go-ahead club that tore the American league apart smashed out 182 home runs, scored 995 runs and gave up 995 runs and gave up 995 runs.

Personally, I believe the Yankees look too good to be true on paper. They should win the flag again but the trouble is last year's clippings don't count.

Tony May Wilt
Searching for an Achilles heel on the ball club, the spotlight falls on 33-year-old Tony Lazzeri who operates at second base.

Tony surprised everyone by last year's performance. In 1936 season he hit the entire 1936 season better than he can go through another year. I can't see much need of any wholesale house cleaning, can you?

asked McCarthy. "But if any of these rookies show me something better than we've got, why we'll be glad to see them out there."

Personally, I believe the Yankees look too good to be true on paper. They should win the flag again but the trouble is last year's clippings don't count.

Except for a battle between Alvin Powell, Myril Hoag and Ernie Koy, a big rookie from the New York farm, virtually every position on the world's championship team appears to be clinched by the boys who shattered records as they went to town last season. McCarthy is over home plate today and observed that the Washington Senator's new pitcher, Sam Salveson, "the best knuckleball I've seen since Urban Shocker used to make Goose Goslin miss his by two feet."

Lakeland, Fla.—Mickey Cochran, Tiger pilot, insists he is not completely convinced that Hank Greenberg, Detroit first baseman who was out last season, will be able to take over his old job. So, in the meantime, he'll hold onto Rudy York, slugging first baseman from Milwaukee.

Winter Haven, Fla.—Manager Jimmy Wilson is devoting a part of training drills to teaching the Philadelphia National Leaguers how to run bases. Wilson insisted that runners must touch the inside corner of first base with the left foot while wheeling toward the second base.

Daytona Beach, Fla.—Manager Frank Frisch pinned his hopes of defeating the world champion New York Yankees today on four pitchers, Mike Ryba, Silas Johnson, John Chambers and Morton Cooper.

Avalon, Calif.—Manager Grimm was concerned today over the condition of the Cubs after another rainstorm washed out yesterday's practice. An avalanche covered the road to the practice field and even if the team could reach the field, it won't be dry for at least another day.

Pasadena, Calif.—Manager Dykes, with rain having washed out the Sox workout today, determined to give his rookie flingers an even break with the regulars in week-end games with Los Angeles. On Saturday, John Rigney and Frank Pappish will get their chance.

New Orleans—The Cleveland Indians were out for their third straight victory today over the New Orleans farm club. One of the Pelicans' chief aims was to stop rookie outfielder Jeff Heath, who has collected a home run, two doubles, a single and one walk in five times at bat in two games.

Van Bostel Beats Helf on St. John Boxing Program

Chuter Fighters Hold Eight Bouts While Practicing for Neenah

ST. JOHN BOXING RESULTS
Helf won decision from Van Bostel at 145 pounds.
Van Greunvent outpointed Van Handel at 150 pounds.
Weinuis won in two rounds over Beavers at 80 pounds.
E. Jansen scored a technical knockout over Neeling at 90 pounds.
De Bruin won decision from Geigel at 120 pounds.
Derks outpointed Evers at 110 pounds.
Van Langfelt won over Karrels at 115 pounds.
Hinkens won decision from Hansen at 80 pounds.
R. Jansen outpointed Peeters at 95 pounds.

LITTLE CHUTE — Urbie Van Bostel and Jerome Helf showed in the most interesting bout of the St. John Catholic high boxing program last night at the school gymnasium. Helf won a decision in three rounds by outsmarting his opponent. He used his left to stop Van Bostel's rushes and then counter-punched his way to a win.

Van Handel, a newcomer, put up a hard fight but dropped a decision to Van Greunvent. Weinuis came from behind in the last two rounds to outpoint Beavers, after Beavers had earned a big edge in the first round with a series of right hand smashes. E. Jansen won on a technical knockout in the second round when the referee stopped the fight after Neeling's eye was closed from a barrage of blows.

Geigel weaved, but not enough, and dropped a decision to De Bruin, who finally caught his opponent in a corner in the second round and then piled up an easy margin. H. Derks showed too much experience for C. Evers and won after Evers sprained his thumb in the second round. H. Van Langfelt pounded Karrels about the head with rights and lefts to take the second round and then coasted to a victory.

Hinkens had too long a reach for Jimmy Hansen and kept his opponent away with jabs while he piled up enough points to win the decision. R. Jansen outpointed Peeters in a nice boxing exhibition in the last bout. Peeters failure to follow in after scoring cost him the decision.

The St. John boxers will meet the Neenah high athletes in a rematch at Neenah next Thursday. Boxers who will compete at Neenah and their weights are: A. De Bruin 88 pounds, E. Jansen 90 pounds, Stan Versteegen 100 pounds, Vosters 110 pounds, Derks 110 pounds, Lamers 115 pounds, Koehn 120 pounds, Siebers 125 pounds, J. Helf 135 pounds, S. Helf 140 pounds, Jo. Versteegen 145 pounds, Boots 150 pounds, Weyenberg 155 pounds and Van Handel 160 pounds.

Coaches Would Ban Center Jump

Three-Second Rule Also Due to be Changed at Chicago Meeting

CHICAGO — The center-jump, a part of basketball since the game's beginning, appeared on its way out today as far as the National Collegiate Basketball Coaches' association was concerned.

The modification of the rule, devised by coaches of the Pacific coast conference's southern division and used there since 1935, and adopted by the Big Ten Sunday for a year's trial, provided that the center-jump be eliminated except at the start of regular and overtime periods. Under the present rule, the ball is brought back to center after each field goal.

Saving as much as seven minutes of playing time per game, according to statistics kept by the Pacific coast group, the proposed measure appeared to have the backing necessary to gain recommendation to the rules committee. Discussion of the proposal was expected to give the 130 coaches plenty of opportunity to exercise their voices, however.

The "three-second" rule, which provides that a player may not remain in the free throw area more than three seconds, with or without possession of the ball, also appeared headed for a change.

Driscoll Plans M. U. Grid Drills Next Week

MILWAUKEE — Paddy Driscoll, Marquette's new football coach, was busy today outlining the work to be done during the spring practice and checking over his list of players.

"Weather permitting, we'll start spring practice next Monday," he said. "There's much work to be done and I hope the weather man favors us to the extent we can get in a good practice session every day for at least five weeks."

Driscoll will have to rebuild his backfield, with only one member, Ray Sonnenberg, returning from the star array of last season. Five promising freshmen also have been lost for the 1937 season. They are: Armstrong, a tackle, Klatt, a half-back, and Bransch, Dessault and Shnosky, ends.

MASCOT RETAINS POWER
Denver — In 1922, the South high school eleven was undefeated football champion. Schuyler Curtis, 3-year-old son of the coach, Tex V. Curtis, was its mascot. In 1935, for the first time since '22, South high again swept unbeaten to the title. Schuyler Curtis, 17, was its star center. It would make a better story — but his father no longer is coach.

Brew Holdouts Report at Camp

So Lou Nahin Is Sure They'll Sign Without Any Trouble

BLOOMINGTON, Miss. — The Milwaukee Brewers' three noteworthy holdouts, Forrest Pressner and Ralph Wernham, pitchers, and Bill Brenzel, catcher, remained unsigned today, although they were at the spring training camp.

"I must get more money than last summer and I intend to get it," Pressner said.

"We aren't very far apart with any hour," commented Business Manager Lou Nahin. "Ball players do not come this far without expecting to sign up sooner or later."

The opening drill, scheduled for yesterday, was called off because of cold weather but Manager Allan Sorothorn expects to send his squad of 18 battersmen through their paces today. With the exception of George Blaeholder and E. Garland Braxton, both veteran pitchers, all are recruits.

William Harridge Likes Chances of Detroit Tigers

CHICAGO — William Harridge isn't going to try picking the American league pennant winner this season but he climbed far enough out on the limb today to say the Detroit Tiger: "is going to take a lot of holding."

Harridge, league president, is just back from a Florida vacation, but he didn't visit a single junior circuit spring camp or see any American league clubs in action. He had a pretty good source, however, for his information on Bengals — Walter O. Briggs, Detroit owner.

"I talked to Mr. Briggs at Miami Beach," Harridge said, "and he's all enthused about Detroit's chances. So am I. With Hank Greenberg back — and I've been told he's in great shape with his injured wrist as strong as ever — the Tigers are certain to make this year's race a tight one."

County League Reelects Weller

Circuit Plans to Operate As Last Year; to Play Split Season

Hilbert J. Weller, Appleton, was reelected president of the Outagamie County Baseball league. R. C. Trauba, Greenville, was named treasurer and Earl Buchman, Hortonville, secretary, at a meeting held last night at Leppla's Corners. Applications of three teams for berth in the league were turned down and the circuit decided to operate as last year with Hortonville, Greenville, Grange, Greenville, Michigan, Dale, Black Creek and Shiocton. The teams will play a split season and arrangements were made for an all-star game with the first round winners to raise enough money for a league banquet at the end of the season.

Another meeting of the circuit will be held in about two weeks at Shiocton.

Teams represented last night were Hortonville by Earl Buchman, Grange by Elmer Schuler, Dale by Orville Hawk, Merchants by R. C. Trauba, Black Creek by William Le Capitaine, and Shiocton by Mike Miller.

Viking Tracksters Won't Enter Relays

Lawrence college tracksters will not compete in the annual Armour relays at Chicago this weekend. The tracksters were called together last week and advised that the track budget would not permit entrance in the North Central tournament at Naperville last week and the Armour relays this week. If the squad wanted to go to the Beloit relays in May, Members of the squad who would have taken the two Illinois trips decided they rather forego them and see the entire squad compete in the Beloit tournament later in the season.

Canadeo Won't Show Tonight on Green Bay Card

Lightweight Champ and Scarlata Preparing For Gloves Bout

GREEN BAY — Johnny Haindl, Cooke, Mich., and Dominick Loonsfoot, Green Bay, will replace Scarlata Canadeo and Al Scarlata, respectively, on the amateur boxing card at the Columbus Community club Tuesday night. The two St. Norbert aces being unable to get leaves of absence for the occasion.

They are training in Chicago for the inter-city Golden Gloves fight Wednesday, March 24.

Haindl and Loonsfoot are rated a couple of capable substitutions. The former gave Canadeo a great lull in the first round of the Press-Gazette Golden Gloves tournament last month. He is a rugged boy who punches with both hands, possesses a world of courage and is rapidly gaining in ring generalship. Loonsfoot, one of the hardest hitting 118-pounders hereabouts, is well known to Green Bay fight fans. He was decided by Scarlata in the 1937 tournament here.

Haindl will be paired with Leroy Peterson, Chicago, Dane, while Loonsfoot will battle Bob Wiley, another Chicagoan with tourney experience.

Plan Eight Scraps
These will be only two of the eight scraps slated for Tuesday evening. The rest of the St. Norbert Belling Brigade, except for Al Grinch, will be on the card. Tom Kennedy, appearing in the winthrop against Webster Epperson, Gary, Ind., heavyweight. Popular Johnny Anderson will battle Ted Taylor of Chicago at 135 pounds.

The other four boys fighting for Green Bay all won Golden Gloves championships last month. Earl Noel Marinette will battle Jimmy Gozra, Italian Ugly champion, at 117 pounds. Bruce Fero, Oshkosh, will meet Pete Karaman, New Orleans, at 125; George Steffen, Leona, 160-pound champ is slated to tangle with Sherman Edwards; and Frank Duker, Marinette husky, will fight Paul Frazier at 175 pounds.

National A. A. U. Cage Tourney Gets Started

Denver — Performing brilliantly and staging exciting rallies, favored teams in the national A.A.U. basketball championship are making the pre-tournament prophesies look better every day.

The first contingent of seeded quintets sailed through initial opposition safely. Only Long Island University, a gallery favorite, had anything like a squeeze.

The L.L.U. shotmakers banged in field goals all through the game to subdue West Texas Teachers, tallest team in the tourney, 38-30.

The field, which listed 45 teams Sunday, will be cut to 16 at the end of today's 11-game program. Tournament fans tonight will see the most glittering team of them all from the standpoint of individual stars — the Bartlesville, Okla. Oilers. Missouri Valley league champions and No. 1 favorite to succeed McPherson, Kas., as national champion.

Baer Believes English Champion Will Be Easy

London — Maxie Baer decided today he could take Tommy Farr, the new heavyweight champion of Great Britain and the empire, in his stride April 19 and then meet Germany's Walter Neusel.

Bert Claflin Begins New Series for Fishermen

BY BERT CLAFLIN
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor
THIS marks the beginning of my tri-weekly articles with maps for 1937. Let me suggest that you get a scrapbook at the dime store and paste the clippings, "window sales." In those I have no of my columns in it. This will mean that you will have at hand at all times valuable information not obtainable elsewhere. Last year I traveled more extensively than ever before in my search for new fishing waters. By that I mean lakes and streams not heretofore described by me. In these articles you will get the benefit of my investigations.

New types of lures, too, will be on the market this year. Many of them I tried out last season in advance of their being offered to fishermen. This I did at the request of the manufacturers and not one of them received my okay unless it proved to be a fish-getter. Not a few lures, as fishermen know, made for "window sales." In those I have no of my columns in it. This will mean that you will have at hand at all times valuable information not obtainable elsewhere. Last year I traveled more extensively than ever before in my search for new fishing waters. By that I mean lakes and streams not heretofore described by me. In these articles you will get the benefit of my investigations.

Watch the Post-Crescent for my first route map and article on a famous fishing region. It will appear in a few days. Also when you come to the big Fishermen's Party April 27 bring along a pencil with which to jot down some of the pointers I shall give you on where to go this year. I'll show you some of the new lures I have spoken of, too.

ESCAPE IF YOU CAN
BY FREDERICK JACKSON

SYNOPSIS: Count Vronski who was blackmailing Anne Phelps with love letters, is shot dead in Anne's studio. Bigelow, the American from Paris, finds Anne and Karsanoff, the glamorous dancer, starting at the corpse. They hide it during a party, then Bigelow and Dr. Austrelitz, the psychologist, move it to Vronski's rooms. Police arrest Thorne Driden, a wealthy chap who hated Vronski, and his wife, Lorna, disappears. Anne and Bigelow find her hiding with Toppy Kane at Toppy's big vacant house in Westchester.

Chapter 30
LORNA'S STORY
HAT'S the idea of disappearing, anyway?" asked Anne.

"It's a long story," said Lorna warily, and she took a drink.

"We can take it," said Anne with a smile.

"Well, then," began Lorna taking a long drag at her cigarette as though for inspiration. "You know, I mean, I was before I married Thorne? About me, I mean."

"I do," said Anne.

"Don't limit it," put in Toppy.

"You see," said Lorna, ignoring her and including Bigelow with a grave look "when my mother died my father didn't know what to do with me because I was only 12 and something of a responsibility. I mean, I was a little bit of a tomboy, or silly vanity or anything is it, Anne? I mean I really was wast' it?"

"Yes," admitted Anne, nodding solemnly.

"And precocious," sighed Lorna, as though she deeply regretted it. "So, what did father do but cap me quickly into a convent in Belgium! And the nuns were terribly strict. Sweet, you know, but strict and we never got a look outside the place except with two nuns to keep an eye on us. And it was pretty poor sport. But there I stayed until I was 19! Imagine it. Seven years of that. No wonder I was like something left loose when I came back and then men were a novelty to me and I liked them."

She looked appealingly at Bigelow and he nodded. She smiled, then, and beamed at him as she went on.

"Naturally, I went a little wild. Any girl would in those circumstances. Even Thorne understood that. We talked it all over when we became engaged and I was quite frank with him."

"What do you mean by quite frank?" asked Anne.

"Well, I told him almost everything there was to tell," explained Lorna.

"But not absolutely everything," asked Anne.

"No-o," admitted Lorna. "I was crazy about him, you see, and I didn't want to risk losing him."

Anne and Toppy exchanged a comprehending glance.

"You mean," Toppy interpreted, "you gave him a general idea of your songs on without exact details?"

"Yes," breathed Lorna gratefully. "So then we were married and then Thorne turned out to be frightfully jealous. She looked at them wide-eyed counting on them to share her surprise. "After all I'd told him I mean and--knowing me I must say I didn't expect that, but there it was. So when Vronski called up and said he had to see me, I went to lunch with him without telling Thorne. And Vronski said he was hard up and could I lend him some money, and he was so distressed at having to ask me. I gave him a check of course. And in a week or two, he came again and then again. The third time, I told him that it couldn't go on or Thorne would find out and be furious; and then Vronski said that he had some letters of mine and they weren't dated? I hardly ever date letters, do you?" She looked from one to the other appealingly as she reached for another cigarette.

"Always," answered Toppy grimly, as Bigelow struck a match.

"Never mind... Go on," begged Anne.

"Well, he said that he'd had photographs made of the checks I'd already given him and that unless I went on paying, he'd go to Thorne and swear the letters had been written since my marriage! And the dates on the checks would bear out his story."

"Well I'm damned!" gasped Bigelow.

"Of course then," Lorna assured them "I saw that I was in a spot so I went straight to Thorne and told him everything. And he was furious and said he would deal with Vronski, and he made it his business to meet Vronski that night and he went straight up and knocked Vronski down and told him he was going to do it every time he met him. So Vronski would have himself a lot of pain and humiliation if he got out of this country at once... Wasn't that splendid?"

"Very satisfactory," agreed Toppy. Bigelow drew a long breath but said nothing.

"And then what happened?" asked Anne.

"Vronski called me up the next day," said Lorna. "He said that he had paid him a hundred thousand dollars in settlement immediately, he would bring a suit for assault and introduce the letters and my checks when the case came into court. Lorna gazed at them, awaiting their reactions."

"That was when your husband decided to kill him," said Bigelow.

"Yes, but I didn't know it until afterwards. He told me he had a business meeting--just as he said. And he swears he didn't kill Vronski. What was in the papers is exactly what he told me."

"But why have you run away?" asked Anne curiously.

"Why," said Lorna as though astonished Anne couldn't see that, "so that the police will suspect me of course."

Bigelow and Anne stared at her. "But you didn't kill Vronski?" said Anne.

"No-o," admitted Lorna wistfully. "but the police won't know that. After Thorne was arrested, I thought the whole thing out. I mean I realized he was in a pretty dangerous position and it was all through me. He told me he had determined not to tell about the blackmailing and he made me promise not to, because he didn't want people to think maybe there had been more between Vronski and me than anyone had supposed. But I thought that if I vanished, people would wonder why, and think maybe Thorne was shielding me and that would raise a reasonable doubt in the mind of the jury and he'd probably be acquitted."

Bigelow and Anne gazed back at her questioningly.

"I told her," Toppy declared, "that she is quite mad and I tried to dissuade her, the instant I heard her fantastic plan. But nothing would move her and if I hadn't agreed to hide her here, she'd have gone somewhere else. In any case, you know how she is. One can't refuse her."

Lorna frowned anxiously at Anne and Bigelow.

"Don't you think it's a good plan?" she asked.

"Well," began Anne doubtfully. "You see, I'm already getting publicity. And people are bound to talk about it and wonder why I went and all that. Toppy seems to think there isn't much of a case against Thorne anyway. But if they do try him, it must shake their conviction a little if I can't be found. They'll know I haven't been got out of the way because I know something against Thorne, because a wife can't be made to testify against her husband. So they'll think I'm keeping her out of the way to conceal my guilt! They're bound to think that. Anyway there's a chance my vanishing will help him and I

Quill and Scroll Members To be Guests at Dinner

Kaukauna—Members of Quill and Scroll, high school literary society, will be guests of the Lions club at a banquet at Hotel Kaukauna next Tuesday night, March 23. Both active and alumni members of the organization will attend.

Following the dinner, the group will be welcomed by George Greenwood, president of the Lions club. A response will be made by Margaret Ann Flanagan, president of the Quill and Scroll. During the banquet music will be furnished by a high school string quartet.

The crowd will then go to the Civic auditorium to hear an address by Prof. Warren Beck of Lawrence college on "The Values of Journalism" in which he will relate some of his own experiences in the field. Olin G. Dryer, high school principal, will talk on high school publications and their importance in student life.

In recent years Virginia has supplied from 30 to 50 per cent of the apple crop exported from this country.

Steel Activity Continues Upward, Demand Increases

Little Unsold Tonnage Available for Delivery Before May 1

Steadily increasing activity marks the steel industry as makers use every effort to increase output in response to mounting demand from consumers. Higher prices have no effect on demand and delivery is the only factor regarded as important by buyers, says Steel.

Little unsold tonnage is available for delivery before the first of May and some deliveries are now offered as far away as September, though most capacity now available would bring June and July shipment.

Prices are rising steadily. Following the general advance in finished steel and pig iron, warehouses are marking up their quotations, cast iron pipe is higher and scrap is going beyond all expectations. Various adjustments are being made to bring specialists into line with the more standard products.

Percentage Up Steelmakers have been able to bring additional capacity into activity with the result that the percentage has been increased one point to 87 per cent. Pittsburgh rose one point to 89, Youngstown one point to 88, Cincinnati four points to 88, Chicago 11 points to 82 and Eastern Pennsylvania 11 points to 82. Cleveland went down 11 points to 78 and Detroit lost five points to 95. No changes were made at Buffalo as 90 per cent, Birmingham at 77, New England at 91, Wheeling at 98 and St. Louis at 82.

Lake Superior iron ore prices have been established at 45 cents per ton above the figure that has been quoted unchanged for eight years. This will cover an increase of 10 cents per ton in the vessel carrying rate and heavier taxes and labor costs of minimum companies. Expectation is for movement of tonnage this year close to the best record of the past.

Automobile production last week dropped to 101,684 units, a loss of about 25,000 from the preceding week. This is almost exactly the shrinkage in Chrysler output, resulting from strikes in its plant. Chrysler steel shipments have failed to have effect on steel production as mills divert to other consumers.

Prices Increased Prices on steel from warehouse are being increased in some items as much as $10 to $12 per ton. This is to cover the recent advances in mill prices and also to readjust the differential over mill prices to compensate for various added ex-

LEADEN—NOT GOLD—SOLDIERS FOR BOY

Calvin Henry Kuiper, 12, of Sheboygan, Wis., is shown as he inspected his leaden toy soldiers with which he must be content because Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau was forced to deny his request for a "few gold bars" from which to mold gold warriors. When he ran out of lead, Calvin wrote Morgenthau, asking for some of the gold Uncle Sam recently transferred to vaults at Fort Knox, Ky. Denied gold, Calvin hunted up an old lead pipe, which he is holding. (Associated Press Photo) penses which have accumulated over several years. These include larger capital investment, higher labor costs and similar items.

Because desire to avail themselves of price protections ending with the close of January drove railroads to place all the cars possible that month, February car purchases were much reduced, totaling 4,972, compared with 17,806 in January. For two months car purchases totaled 22,788, largest number for these months since 1929, when 29,140 were bought. The peak was in 1924 when 49,500 cars were bought in January and February. Shipments of finished steel by the United States Steel Corp. in February were at the weekly rate of 263,491 tons, compared with a corresponding rate of 269,746 tons in January. Total shipments were 1,133,724 tons in February, compared with 676,315 tons in February, 1936.

Imports Decline Steel and iron imports into the United States in January were 40,642 tons, a slight decline from 42,775 tons in January, 1936 and a gain over 38,514 tons in December, 1936. Steel scrap imports declined from 14,070 tons in December to 2,421 tons in January, possibly a reflection of heavier shipments from Canada to Great Britain.

Steel production in Great Britain in February was at a rate that would have established a new all-

All State Roads In Fair Condition

Thawing Weather Will Create New Hazards, Commission Warns

Although thawing weather will create new hazards, state trunk highways are in good to fair condition for travel, a state highway commission report states.

At present, earth and light surfaced highways are in a frozen condition, many of them having rough and rutted stretches on them, but in case of warm weather these highways again will become soft and probably break up considerably, the report stated. Travelers are urged to obtain first hand information on highway conditions before attempting long trips.

Frost heaves are still numerous all over the central and northern part of the state but are marked by signs. Weight restriction signs are being placed daily and trucks and haulers are warned to get information on the limits before attempting to haul heavy loads.

Predicts Increase in State's Death Rate

Madison—Based on his prediction on the radical rise in the Wisconsin death rate in January, L. W. Hutchcroft, chief statistician of the state board of health, declared today that the state's general death rate is destined to mount above its present level of 10.1 per 1,000 population.

Nearly 3,500 deaths were reported in Wisconsin last January, Hutchcroft said. This total is 761 in excess of the six-year average for the month. Increased fatalities from pneumonia and influenza accounted for the unusual rise. Accidental deaths also showed an abrupt upturn, Hutchcroft said.

"A trend, characterized by saving the lives of infants and young people through preventive measures against communicable diseases, has resulted in an increased percentage of middle-age and elderly persons in population," Hutchcroft said. "These upper age groups are now experiencing higher death tolls from organic diseases which prey chiefly upon these groups."

These Human Beings Would seem Less Human A human being, whose original reason for being may be computed in an exact number of lire, which is a 6-cent Italian coin, seems some- less human than one who occurred in the natural course of events, and I wonder what God's policy is toward persons bred for the purpose of killing other human beings, or as brood-stock to produce still more killers.

For the duce's purpose is plain in this respect. He has staked out on the map of Africa the countries which are to be conquered by these bundles from heaven who will be trained from infancy in the arts of killing, and they come into the world with the mission of killing or in the case of the girls, of producing killers.

That much is plain. I am not an expert on the subject of souls, but I have to roll my own thoughts on the subject, because there is something terrible about the reasoning of anyone holding expert credentials who would justify this procedure in the name of God.

Mussolini Seems Just a Little Bit Inconsistent

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER New York—I have been trying to imagine what would happen in this country if we had a Mussolini of our own and he were to issue a decree like the one which the duce nonchalantly let fly at the Italian people a few days ago with regard to the propagation of the breed. For several years Mussolini gave wedding bounties and baby bonuses to his subjects to stimulate the production of Italians, an adaptation of the speed-up system which organized labor heartily desires in industrial life.

He constantly harangued the people on the subject of population, holding that if there were not many more Italians the time would come when there would be no Italians, because a numerically small nation could not stand off its enemies. Then, a little over a year ago, he justified his gallant defensive war against the Abyssinians in a land 3,000 miles away on the ground that Italy was over-populated, and had to expand or bust.

There seemed to be a slight inconsistency in this, but one of the advantages which a dictator enjoys is his immunity to embarrassing questions.

Now that Italy has expanded into Abyssinia, the duce again is demanding more Italians, and this time he doesn't say "please," but applies financial pressure. The bachelors' tax has been increased, and married couples are required to breed, if possible, failing which their possessions will be seized by the state upon their death. There seems to be a serious invasion of the private life of the Italian citizen in the terms of this decree, and a descent to the raw realities of the backyard. But worse than that: there is a question concerning the sons of the Italians who are to be produced merely as tax-exempt additions and for revenue only.

These Human Beings Would seem Less Human A human being, whose original reason for being may be computed in an exact number of lire, which is a 6-cent Italian coin, seems some- less human than one who occurred in the natural course of events, and I wonder what God's policy is toward persons bred for the purpose of killing other human beings, or as brood-stock to produce still more killers.

"Luckies are a light smoke that treat a tender throat right"

"In a way, it's easier to keep in condition as a dancer than as a singer. Exercise can keep the muscles in shape, but there are a lot of things that can go wrong with the voice and throat. It stands to reason, then, that any actress wants a cigarette that is gentle and strikes the right note with her throat. I started smoking Luckies 4 years ago. They're a light smoke that treat a tender throat right."
